SIRE POWER SALE

Art-Acres Marbeth Kay U - ET, a Chairman daughter, brought the top bid of $25,500 at Wednesday's Sire Power Sale.

Average on Sire Power Sale soars to $3813

BY WENDY WEHR

KUTZTOWN — A torrential downpour beating on the pavilion roof literally drowned out the auctioneers' voices. But while the rain beat down, the prices shot up during the 1985 Sire Power Sale, held Wednesday in Kutztown.

Spirited bidding brought the sale average to $3813 on the 53 mature animals consigned to the sale. Last year's Sire Power extravaganza averaged only $2,221.

Chairman daughters captured most of the attention during the day, with two of the sire's offspring bringing prices over $20,000.

Easily topping the sale was Art-Acres Marbeth Kay U - ET, a Chairman daughter out of the well-known Art-Acres Elevation Kay. As bidding began on the two-year-old, Horace Backus didn't hesitate to call the Kay cow "one of the great brood cows of this generation."

Art-Acres Elevation Kay has four daughters in the top 200 of the CTPI list and a slew of remarkable progeny to her credit.

But Kay U's purchaser didn't need to be reminded of her outstanding pedigree. For a bid of $25,500, Arthur Rhoderick brought Kay U home to Art-Acres, Hagerstown, Md.

Rhoderick bred Kay U and sold her three years ago as an embryo for $8700. She was consigned to this year's Sire Power Sale by Owen E. Martin, also of Hagerstown, Md.

Fresh March 27, Kay U milked 72 pounds on the May test. She was bred July 23 to the increasingly popular Ned Boy bull.

The Ex-91 Kay has a wealth of credits to her name, including a 34,000 pound milk record and over 1115 pounds fat. Her cow index stands at +1273M and +$143.

Following the Kay daughter, Del-Myr F H Chairman Pasta B brought a $20,000 bid. A Chairman out of Del-Myr Bell Peggy, she was consigned by Fair Hill Farm, Chestertown, Md., and purchased by The Pasta Syndicate, in care of Ed Fry of Fair Hill.

Pasta's dam is a GP-83 Bell daughter with 26 210 pounds milk and 940 of fat. Her index stands at +784M. The October, 1982 Pasta is scored very good with an excellent mammary.

A Jetson daughter carrying a valuable embryo brought the third highest bid of the day. Mike Wilson, in care of Juniper Farm, Gray, Maine, purchased Brooks-Twain Jetson Puzzle-ET from Walter Brooks of Springville.

Puzzle is out of Brooks-Twain Elevation Penny, whose production as a five-year-old reached a remarkable 34,813 pounds of 4.1 percent milk and 1412 of fat. Penny is scored VG-87 with a cow index of +1437M and +$182.

But Puzzle's sale value was increased by the embryo she carries from a Whittier Farms Ned Boy and Y-Brookside Chairman Snow mating. The Snow cow also has production records over 32,000 pounds milk and 1320 of fat.

Also exceeding a $10,000 price tag was another Jetson offspring. For $12,000 Greg and Pat Mitchell, of Davidsonville, Md., purchased a choice of a Jetson flush from Coldsprings Elevation Insert.

Marlin Hoff, of New Windsor, Md., consigned the Jetson embryo, which is due in August. The Insert cow is a fourth generation excellent with 34,760 pounds milk and 1216 of fat at five years and seven months.

Bringing a $9000 bid was Mims-Dream Klansman Buttons, consigned by Miriam Hess, of New Windsor, Md. Out of Mims-Dream Cinnamon Brandy, Buttons is by Coldsprings Klansman - ET, also out of the Insert cow.

Buttons was purchased by Rosecroft Ltd., in care of Gary Derr, Mt. Airy, Md.

All of the 57 head, which included 53 mature animals and 4 calves under a month old, were by Sire Power bulls. The total sale volume reached $204,500.

Following the sale, Sire Power general manager DuWayne Kutz

Producers' vote will set fate of dairy promotion

BY JAMES H. EVERHART

LANCASTER — The future of dairy promotion hangs in the balance as dairy farmers across the country participate in a "vote of confidence" in a national referendum this month.

The referendum is the producers' chance to indicate whether they are willing to continue paying the bills for the promotional activities.

The national referendum is required under the provisions of the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983, the same legislation that created the promotion program and the 15-cent-a-hundredweight deduction that finances it.

The vote began Thursday and will continue through Aug. 20, under USDA supervision. All producers shipping milk during April 1985 are eligible to participate.

Dairy cooperatives can bloc-vote for their membership, but are required to send members ballots to use if they disagree with the co-op's vote.

Independents can pick up their ballots at their county ASCS office and mail them after Aug. 1 and before Aug. 20 in the postage-paid envelope provided. Only one vote per farm unit is permitted.

A toll-free hotline is available for anyone with questions. The number is 1-800-423-7206.

A majority of producers voting must be in favor of the promotion program for it to continue. If the referendum fails, the promotion program will expire with the rest of the Act in September.

Dairy leaders and promotion advocates have mounted an impressive campaign to win the support of the producers in the all-important vote.

Members of the panel who discussed dairy promotion at the Dairy Meeting Tuesday at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster were: Daniel Fox, dairy farmer and director of Eastern Milk Producers; Richard Shellenberger, general manager of retail operation, Kreider Dairy Farms, and a member of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Board; William Stout, Lehigh Valley Farmers; James Fraher, economist for Inter-State Milk Producers; Earl Fink, executive vice president of the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers; and Blair Smith, ag economics professor at Penn State University.

Representatives of several key promotional organizations met with about 120 dairy farmers in Lancaster Tuesday to drum up support for the promotion program.

The session Tuesday was the first of two dairy meetings held at the Farm and Home Center and sponsored by the Penn State Extension Service, Dairymen, Inc., Eastern Milk Producers, Inter-State Milk Producers, Kreider Dairy Farms and Lehigh Valley Farmers. A second session, concentrating on legislative issues confronting dairymen, will be held this Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Though the odds seem to be overwhelmingly in favor of referendum passage, none of the program participants seemed Triplets: Once in a blue moon?

While a "blue moon"—the second full moon in the month of July—shone over Lancaster Farming country last week, another rare event took place on the Phares and Martha Hurst farm, Leola, where a set of triplet calves got a healthy start on life.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUG. 5-11, 1985

Languid and still are vale and hill.

Painter Jackson Pollock died, Aug. 11, 1956. Last quarter of the moon Aug. 8 (Thurs). Dutch naval force bombarded British garrison on Manhattan Island Aug. 7, 1673. Captain Robert Gray's Columbia completed first American circumnavigation of the globe, Aug. 10, 1790. Average length of days for the week, 14 hours, 11 minutes. Mother Ann Lee, founder of American Shaker movement, arrived in New York, Aug. 6, 1774. A cold flint may strike fire.

Ask the Old Farmer: Plum pudding is one of our traditions for Christmas. But why is it called plum pudding? R.F. Rumney, N.H.

It's a fancy way of saying the pudding has raisins in it. It's like plum duff, a favorite dessert of sailors that was nothing but flour, water, and a handful of raisins.

Home Hints: Remove white rings from mahogany furniture by applying spirits of camphor immediately wiping off.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Rain with cool temperatures at week's beginning, midweek sunny and warm, showers north, end of week partly cloudy and pleasant.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Week begins with rain, warm temperatures mid through end of week partly cloudy, mild.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Sunny and hot with few showers at week's beginning, midweek milder, rain south, showers by week's end.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Week begins clear and hot, thundershowers, mild temperatures by midweek, end of week continuing mild with thundershowers.

Guest Editorial:

Generic versus branded: Will dairy promotion pay its way?

By Kathy E. Gill
Executive Secretary
Pa. Assn. of Farmer Cooperatives
Three days into the voting period for the national dairy promotion program referendum is a good time to ask: "Does advertising pay?"

The easy answer is, "Of course, look at all the money that Coke, Pepsi and Anheuser-Busch spend on advertising. They wouldn't have such large budgets if advertising did not pay!"

However we all know that dairy-farmer-funded advertising differs greatly from that of the firms named above. Why? Primarily because it is generic, that is, not brand-specific.

That very difference has sparked debates across the Commonwealth and the nation. Generic versus branded. Which is better?

Generic gets nod
The traditional generic has been that generic advertising increases the market for a product, whereas brand advertising increases that brand's share of the market.

A July 1 report to Congress confirms that view. In it, Arthur D. Little Inc. states, "brand advertising of cheese compliments generic advertising more so that vice versa." That is, generic advertising exerts a greater impact on cheese sales than brand advertising, according to a 1984 study.

"Generic advertising (of cheese) is found to be 7.1 times more effective than brand advertising in expanding cheese sales in the market," the report states. The report credits generic advertising with increasing the market for cheese by nearly eight percent.

Thus dairy farmers, whose main goal is increased raw milk sales, should continue funding generic cheese advertising. Those farmers that market branded cheeses should also be funding branded advertising, remembering that generic increases the size of the cheese "pie" for all dairy farmers.

Fluid increases
In general terms, dairy farmers spent $33.5 million to advertise fluid milk in 12 specific markets from August 1984 to August 1985. That includes regional and national actions. Remembering that economists sometimes turn things around, the Arthur D. Little Inc. report says that with no advertising at all, fluid milk sales in these markets should have been 751.8 million pounds less than with the $33.5 million.

In the logic of the rest of the population, we can deduce that $33.5 million invested in fluid milk advertising increased fluid milk sales 751.8 million pounds in those 12 markets. Blend prices are about $14 in Federal Order 4, so, using that figure, the increased commercial sales have a farm value of $105.2 million.

In simpler terms, one dollar in fluid advertising resulted in three dollars in fluid sales in these 12 markets. However, if you want to really stretch the implications, you could double that figure since the 12 markets represent only 43 percent of the US population. But it is even more important to recognize that these sales mean less milk manufactured and sold to the government.

Without a doubt, the fact that the milk would have sold in any case colors the valuation process. But also without a doubt, generic fluid milk advertising pays.

Does it pay?
It is important to keep in mind that this recent analysis is only a first step. With a limited amount of data, economists hedge when asked to make specific promises.

These economists will say, however, that generic advertising has a "positive and statistically significant effect on fluid milk sales."

With that fact in mind, when you vote on continuing the advertising program, remember that your 15-cent advertising investment can be translated loosely into a 45-cent increase in fluid sales and an eight percent increase in the cheese market.

Where else can you get that kind of return or investment?

Background Scripture:
habakkuk
Devotional Reading:
Habakkuk

"How long, O Lord? How long?" asks the prophet Habakkuk. And from time to time when we are particularly honest within ourselves, so do we.

To some, it might sound arrogant, perhaps even blasphemous: "O Lord, how long must I call for help before you will listen? I shout to you in vain; there is no answer" (1:2). Habakkuk's words are both a question and complaint.

CRUEL & VIOLENT
The prophet does not try to hide his true thoughts and feelings—for God knows them anyway. And because he is willing to bare his heart to God, the Lord reveals to him what would have probably remained hidden if he had been more timid: "Look and be amazed! You will be astounded at what I am about to do" (1:5).

Perhaps one reason many of us do not receive God's revelation is that we fail to ask him the hard questions that bother us.
The answer that God gave to Habakkuk was not what he wanted to hear: "I am raising a new force on the world scene, the Chaldeans, a cruel and violent nation who will march across the world and conquer it" (1:6). Although the Chaldeans worship other gods and are ignorant of the Lord, he will be using them to accomplish his divine purposes.

Though many of us would be too timid to press further, Habakkuk is not satisfied with this answer: "...Should you be silent while the wicked destroy those who are better than they?" (1:12,14). The Lord seems to be doing something that is out of character with the prophet's understanding of who and what God is.

JUST BE PATIENT!
And, once again, because Habakkuk is willing to raise the hard questions, God is able to give him some new understanding: "Slowly, steadily, surely, the time approaches when the vision will be fulfilled. If it seems slow, do not despair, for these things will surely come to pass" (2:3). These things are all part of God's larger plan.

With this greater, fuller understanding of God's purpose—even though he doesn't understand just how or why—Habakkuk can do what all of us must learn to do if we are to live by faith: to praise God in the midst of adversity.

To Attend Ag Progress Days
Most farmers do not need much prodding to visit an agricultural show whether it is in the county or halfway across the state.
And, since 1976 tens of thousands of people have jammed Penn State University's Rock Springs Agricultural Research Center, nine miles west of Boalsburg on Route 45, to attend the Annual Ag Progress Days. The dates are August 20-22. Activities will start at 9 a.m. and end at 5 p.m. each day.
This year's show should be one of the biggest and best ever. More than 300 commercial companies will be exhibiting their products for home, farming and country living. Take a day out of your busy schedule (you've earned it) and plan to attend Ag Progress Days. There is no charge for parking or admission.

To Observe Poultry Month
The Lancaster County Commissioners have proclaimed August as Poultry Month. So, this is a good time to reflect on the impact this important industry has on the economy of Lancaster County. Poultry products in Lancaster County provide nourishment for over six million people. The value of the poultry products sold totaled over $174 million. It is estimated that nearly 20,000 people are employed in the many different areas of the poultry industry in Lancaster County.
The industry is strong because of the dedicated, well managed poultry farms along with a highly efficient and supportive allied industry. Eggs and poultry meat are two of the most nourishing foods in your health diet. Let's be support of this important part of our agricultural economy during Poultry Month.

To Be Aware of the Pollen Count
The "hay fever" season is here. Despite its name "hay" is not normally the cause of hay fever. Ragweed is the chief cause. Ninety percent of all allergic reactions to grass and weed pollens are due to ragweed.
Hay fever is a seasonal disease. It's a disease that many people tend to minimize despite the fact that one out of every three sufferers develop its serious form—chronic asthma.
In Lancaster County it is widespread from early August through September when ragweed flowers. The best way to destroy the weed over large areas is by using a weed spray such as 2, 4-D. Cutting the plant low, near the roots is recommended for small areas. The best way to prevent the spread of ragweed to keep idle land covered with grass.

To Flush Ewe Flock
Sheep producers in this part of the country should be planning for the 1986 lamb crop. The starting place is to have healthy ewes and a good ram. The practice of "flushing" the ewe flock several weeks prior to the breeding season is recommended in order to get more twin lambs.
This refers to the feeding of extra grain, or the ewes having access to lush grass-type pasture in order to bring them into a gaining condition. Ewes that are not thrifty at breeding time will be more likely to throw only a single lamb. The control of internal parasites should be given attention prior to the breeding season.

Only one silage inoculant can show an 8 to 1 return on investment. And prove it.

Feeding trials show that silage treated with Pioneer® brand 1177 silage inoculant gives you up to $8.00 more milk for every $1.00 invested in 1177 silage inoculant. To get a FREE copy of the feeding trials results, just call 1-800-247-6782, Ext. MILK.

Why treating with 1177 silage inoculant gives you more milk per ton of silage.

The fermentation process is essential in making good silage. Yet, nutrients can be lost during this process due to spoilage, overheating and run-off.

You see, bacteria are the key to good fermentation. And some beneficial bacteria strains are on the crop itself. The problem is, the right kinds of bacteria aren't always there in large enough numbers to do the best job.

Only by using 1177 silage inoculant can you be sure there are a sufficient number of bacteria for fast, efficient fermentation. And better fermentation means reducing spoilage, overheating and run-off. That way, your silage retains more of its nutritional value — providing your animals with the best feed possible.

Quality...through each phase of development.

Pioneer is the only agricultural producer of silage additives involved in all phases of the product: basic and applied research, production, animal feeding trials, marketing and service. So, when you use 1177 silage inoculant in your operation, you can be confident that you're getting the highest quality silage inoculant available.

Talk to your Pioneer sales representative about 1177 silage inoculant, he'll show you how to get more milk for every ton of forage you ensile.

HARRISBURG - Development of the commonwealth corn crop continued ahead of schedule as five days were rated suitable for fieldwork during the week ending July 28, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Corn averaged 62 inches in height, compared to 57 inches at this time last year. Overall crop condition was rated by reporters as two percent very poor, three percent poor, 15 percent fair, 43 percent good, and 37 percent excellent.

Activities for the week included harvesting second cutting hay, wheat, oats, peaches, apples, sweet corn, garden vegetables, baling straw; and spraying alfalfa. The average temperature for the week was 69 degrees, two degrees below normal. The average precipitation was 1.39 inches, .53 inch below normal.

Throughout the state, topsoil moisture supplies were rated by reporters as 32 percent short, 59 percent adequate and nine percent surplus. In the northern region, moisture was rated as 25 percent short and 75 percent adequate. Central region reporters indicated 27 percent short, 55 percent adequate, and 18 percent surplus. Southern region reporters indicated moisture levels as 45 percent short, 45 percent adequate and 10 percent surplus.

The wheat crop across the commonwealth was reported to be three percent headed, two percent turning yellow, 30 percent ripe and 65 percent harvested. Northern region reporters estimated 10 percent headed, seven percent turning yellow, 44 percent ripe and 39 percent harvested. Central region reporters indicated one percent turning yellow, 37 percent ripe and 62 percent harvested.

Southern region reporters indicated eight percent ripe and 92 percent harvested. Statewide, crop condition was rated one percent poor, 13 percent fair, 55 percent good and 31 percent excellent.

Statewide, one percent of the barley crop was reported as turning yellow, 12 percent ripe and 87 percent harvested. Northern reporters indicated five percent turning yellow, 24 percent ripe and 71 percent harvested. Central region reporters indicated 12 percent ripe and 88 percent harvested. Southern area reporters indicated 100 percent of the crop harvested.

Reporters throughout the state estimated oat development as eight percent headed, 32 percent turning yellow, 37 percent ripe and 23 percent harvested. This time last year, 30 percent of the crop was headed, 50 percent turning yellow, 17 percent ripe and three percent harvested. Northern region reporters indicated 23 percent headed, 55 percent turning yellow, 20 percent ripe and two percent harvested. Central region reporters estimated 28 percent turning yellow, 49 percent ripe and 23 percent harvested. Southern region reporters indicated 11 percent turning yellow, 44 percent ripe and 45 percent harvested.

Across the commonwealth the first cutting of alfalfa and clover was reported as virtually complete. Second cutting alfalfa was estimated as 79 percent complete. Quality of hay was estimated as nine percent poor, 24 percent fair and 67 percent good. The amount of feed being obtained from pastures was rated as 42 percent below average, 49 percent average and nine percent above average.

Cattle numbers off four percent

HARRISBURG - Cattle and calf inventory in the United States on July 1 was estimated at 116 million head, down four percent from July 1 a year ago and six percent below July 1983, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. This is the lowest July 1 cattle inventory estimate since mid-year estimates were begun in 1973. The current estimate is the fourth consecutive year of an inventory decline after only two years of expansion. Information for Pennsylvania and other states is not available.

Cows and heifers that have calved, at 46.3 million, are down five percent from 1984 and seven percent below 1983 levels. Milk cows were up two percent while the beef cow herd was seven percent down from 1984.

Beef replacement heifers were down 11 percent from last year while milk replacement heifers were up one percent from a year ago. For the first time since mid-year class estimates have been made, milk replacement heifers (5.0 million) exceed the number of beef replacement heifers (4.9 million.) The other heifer class was up three percent from a year ago and reflect the large inventory of heifers in feedlots on July 1.

Steers and bulls 500 pounds and over are down three percent and eight percent respectively from a year ago. All calves under 500 pounds are down five percent.

The 1985 U.S. calf crop is expected to total 41.1 million head, down three percent from 1984. This would be the smallest calf crop since 1961.

The Hisex White and Brown Layers: Above Average Performance Is Average

Compare the production and feed efficiency of the Hisex White and Hisex Brown layers and you won't find any better, anywhere. And that is a condition that will continue since Hisex research and development keeps improving the breed.

But mere test figures don't tell the whole story. The fact is that good henhouse managers can beat these figures. Hisex field testing has proven that. You may well obtain better feed conversion, mortality, and higher production.

As in all things, you must start with a good, basic product. The good genes, in other words.

See for yourself. Put these great birds to work for you soon. You'll find their average performance produces above average results.

Who Got the Best Buy?

Farmer Bob and Farmer Ray bought confinement equipment the very same day!

Farmer Ray thought he had a fantastic bargain — soon he discovered that a bargain product can be far more costly in the long run as everything soon rusted and corroded! Fencing, Nursery Pens, Farrowing Crates, and Gestation Stalls — all now need to be replaced at today's higher costs.

Farmer Bob chose Rohn "Hot Dip Galvanized" Agri Products and his equipment is still as good as new. The reason? Zinc is the finish that withstands corrosive elements longer and provides years of carefree, reliable service.

There's no doubt about it, Rohn Agri Products are your very "Best Buy"!

USDA wants to amend fresh tomato standards

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture proposes to amend the voluntary U.S. standards for grade of fresh tomatoes to bring them in line with current sizing practices.

John J. Gardner, a marketing official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the action has been proposed at the request of the Florida Tomato Exchange and the California Fresh Market Tomato Advisory Board.

"The requested change in the diameter requirements of the current generic size designations would reduce the industry's present difficulty in meeting these size requirements and would promote more uniform trading practices," Gardner said.

AMS establishes grade standards and provides official grading for many agricultural products. Use of the standards and the grading service is voluntary and is paid for by the user.

The proposed revised standards are scheduled to be published in the July 24 Federal Register. Suggested changes in the revisions may be sent to the Fruit & Vegetable Division Clerk, Room 2069-S, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

CHORE-TIME

NEW CHORE-TIME COW FEEDING SYSTEM

Increase milk production while saving labor, feed

Put Chore-Time Cow Feeding System To Work Boosting Your Income

Feeding supplement by hand wastes money two ways:

(1.) Some cows get too much, others not enough — wasting feed and hurting production.

(2.) It's time and labor spent you'd be money ahead to put into management. Mechanize your feeding with an inexpensive, energy-efficient Chore-Time Cow Feeding System. Feed each cow the right amount, as many times a day (to boost production) as you want by automatic timeclock, or by pulling a lever.

Find out about the Chore-Time system — our 10-year warranty on auger — plus the line of feed bins that outshell all others in America because of their built-in quality and long life.

Drop Feeder is made of durable, rustproof polyethylene plastic for feeding either dry ground rations or for use in high moisture corn systems.

Simple ball valve in feeder means long, trouble-free service.

TWO TYPES OF FEED DELIVERY SYSTEMS (FLEX-AUGER or MULTIFLEX) AVAILABLE WITH THE NEW CHORE-TIME COW FEEDING SYSTEM

FLEX AUGER

Ideal For Straighter Runs, Larger Capacities

Highly energy-efficient, extremely long wearing and trouble-free — that's how FLEX-AUGER systems are known the world over.

For most livestock and poultry feeding installations, plus for moving high or low moisture grain FLEX-AUGER is the ideal choice.

For Lots Of Turns, Sharper Corners, Greater Lengths

MULTIFLEX is a new innovation using the same high tensile strength steel auger as on our famous FLEX-AUGER. But, instead of rotating the auger, a MULTIFLEX system propels it within the tube. This sliding of the steel auger means there can be more corners and sharper corners in a system.

There's an added bonus in energy savings: while FLEX-AUGER beats the competition in energy-efficiency, our new MULTIFLEX saves even more energy.

Discuss your particular needs with us to make the best choice of systems for your kind of animals and building layout.

Twix Jerseys capture District II championships

BY GINGER S. MYERS

SHIPPENSBURG — The perfect combination of great weather, outstanding Jersey cattle, and dairy-farmer camaraderie all came together recently at the Pennsylvania District II Jersey Show, held in conjunction with the Shippensburg Community Fair.

Over 100 head of Jersey cattle, representing 14 exhibitors, were paraded before James McCaffree, Delta, official judge for the show, which was co-sponsored by the fair and the Cumberland Valley Jersey Breeders Association.

While no single exhibitor dominated the show, Twix Jerseys, owned by Dennis Hardy and family, Petersburg, could boast of capturing the most champion rosettes.

Leading out the grand champion of both the open and 4-H shows was Jerome Hardy, with his senior two-year-old, T.K. Saint Lily. Lily was praised by the judge as being the most balanced cow in the show and was designated to receive the show's best udder award.

This outstanding daughter of Favorite Saint is projected to produce over 15,000 pounds of milk actual in 305 days.

Jerome's brother, James, also collected his share of winnings for leading out both the junior champion in the open and 4-H shows and the grand champion of the FFA show.

Mar-De Farms, combining the wins of Marilyn Zinn and her sister, Mary Ellen Deaven, received the banner for premier exhibitor of the show.

The premier breeder banner was captured by another familiar show-winning family — Pleasant Valley Jerseys, owned by the Lester Martin family, Chambersburg. On the strength of having paraded out the show's reserve junior champion, Belles Morning Glory, and five second place wins, the Martins collected enough points to win this coveted award, which was sponsored by the Cumberland Valley Jersey Breeders Association.

Block cuts loan rate for flue-cured tobacco

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has approved a request of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation to effectively reduce the 1985-crop flue-cured tobacco loan rate by 5 cents per pound and authorized rebates as incentives to purchasers of this kind of tobacco.

Secretary Block said he lowered the loan rate to $1.65 per pound as permitted by the Nunn Amendment to make the tobacco more price competitive.

Block said he authorized the Stabilization Corporation to offer buyers of this year's crop a 10 cents per pound rebate from the no-net-cost tobacco fund at the beginning of the marketing season. The 10-cent rebate will further reduce the effective 1985 loan rate to $1.55 per pound.

Another rebate of 15 cents per pound has been authorized to be paid at the end of the marketing season on all purchases if during the season buyers have purchased at least 650 million pounds of the 1985 flue-cured crop and, subject to prices and conditions to be made available to buyers by the Stabilization Corporation, at least 125 million pounds of the 1976-1984 flue-cured inventory.

Secretary Block said he intends to keep the tobacco program operating at no-net-cost to taxpayers but wishes to be flexible in carrying out this principle and will work with the tobacco industry to keep the no-net-cost fund sound.

He said also that while he is willing to offer these concessions announced today, he at the same time expects everyone in the tobacco industry to do their part to ensure a successful 1985 flue-cured sale.

Bender family wins premier awards at Somerset Holstein show

BY BETSY STITT
Staff Correspondent
MEYERSDALE — Somerset County Holstein Breeders started off another show season recently with the Somerset District Holstein Show, held at the county fairgrounds.

Approximately 150 Holsteins were paraded before judge Ron Long. Although the numbers were down from last year, said exhibitor Wayne Schrock, quality remained high. Following the show, Long commented that any of the day's champions could go on to face stiffer competition on the state level.

Carl Bender was the top winner of the day, winning both the premier breeder and premier exhibitor honors. The Bender-owned animals placed consistently at the top of their classes, which Bender credited to the hard work of his whole family.

In the junior division Paul Carr was named the premier breeder and Jenny Brown earned the premier exhibitor award.

Senior and grand champion honors went to Edgar Yoder, showing Md.-Maple-Manor-Threat Bonnie. This 5-year-old Hanover-Hill Triple Threat daughter produced 27,080 pounds of milk and 964 pounds of fat as a four year old.

Micheal Carr, with Carrdale Pete Little Jo, received the reserve senior and reserve grand awards in the open competition and the grand championship in the junior division.

Carr's four-year-old Straight-Pine Elevation Pete daughter has a top record of 21,523 pounds of milk and 942 pounds of fat with a 4.4 percent test.

Doug Sheeler won reserve senior and reserve grand awards in the

Junior champion honors in both open and junior competition were won by Karen Marteeny, with Marteeny Tony Corry. This senior yearling heifer is a Marshfield Elevation Tony daughter.

Gina Berkley received both the reserve junior champion ribbons with a junior yearling heifer by Straight-Pine Elevation Pete.

A junior yearling bull shown by Paul and Sharon Fox was named grand champion bull. Golden Circle Touch of Class is a Leadfield Columbus-ET son. Kirk Hillegass had the reserve grand champion with a Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell son.

Corey Jay Will had the junior division grand champion bull, which was also a Columbus son.

DVC names Avery ag-business head

DOYLESTOWN — Dr. John Avery has been appointed Chairman of Delaware Valley College's Agribusiness Department, replacing George West, who served as acting chairman of the department for one year. West will continue as Chairman of the College's Business Administration Department.

The Agribusiness major was introduced at Delaware Valley College in 1983 to afford students a chance to pursue career opportunities in one of the approximately nine steps between agricultural production and consumption. As of this past fall, 40 students were enrolled in the College's Agribusiness program.

"I am genuinely excited about the prospects of my appointment," said Avery. "This is a challenge but one which I am confident in approaching. The College has the resources necessary to make the Agribusiness major a successful one. And I intend to use my background in agriculture and education and business to make some important things happen."

Before being hired at Delaware Valley College, Avery was most recently employed at Richland Community College in Decatur, Illinois. Avery was the Agricultural Coordinator there, responsible for the school's agriculture department via program development, evaluation, personnel recruiting, teaching and community relations.

Avery's previous work experience includes having served as an instructor and program representative for the Southwest Wisconsin Vocational Technical Institute, district sales manager for the Dairyland Seed Company, territory sales manager for Cargill, Inc. and County Extension Agent for Michigan State University.

He graduated from Michigan State in 1952 with a Bachelor of Science degree. He went on to earn his Master of Science in Teaching from the University of Wisconsin in 1976 and his Doctor of Education from the University of Illinois in 1984.

Holstein Association promoting exports

BRATTLEBORO, VT — Agricultural exports create jobs and boost America's foreign trade balance, a new study says — and a unique public-private partnership is working to raise export levels even higher.

The study, issued by the U.S. Agricultural Export Development Council, says private groups like the Holstein Association work with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in 130 countries to develop markets for U.S. products. This market development program was created by Congress thirty years ago at the same time as the Food for Peace international-aid program.

The USAEDC's members include the private-sector trade groups who actually carry out market development abroad, building demand for citrus and soy beans, peaches and potatoes, cotton and Holstein cattle.

"Agricultural exports mean growth and jobs for the U.S. economy," the study says. "Agricultural trade has shown a positive balance every year since 1960 — and with today's monstrous U.S. trade deficits, the nation needs the hard currency that agricultural exports earn."

"Developing foreign markets for U.S. Holsteins serves the U.S. dairy industry well, as quantities of excess quality dairy cattle are exported to countries building their own dairy sectors," according to James Zarndt, manager of international market development for the Holstein Association. Zarndt adds that "removing these cattle from the U.S. milk production" scene helps to reduce the current dairy product surplus situation, thereby benefitting all U.S. dairymen.

The nation's agricultural market development efforts combine the resources of the private trade groups, the U.S. Department of Agriculture and overseas customers. The trade groups, or "cooperators," fund a major portion of the program, with additional resources coming from USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service and from foreign businesses or agencies who are interested in the products the U.S. has to sell.

The USAEDC study, entitled "Successfully Selling Abroad," says that:

- Agricultural exports of around $35 billion a year account for a million jobs in the U.S. economy, and agriculture is one of the few economic sectors with a positive trade balance.

- The cooperator program allows the public and private sectors to achieve together what neither could achieve separately: USDA is involved because world agricultural trade is highly regulated and U.S. sellers often face unfair trade barriers; the cooperator groups bring private-sector expertise to the task of marketing our nation's agricultural bounty.

USAEDC's chairman, Kenneth L. Bader, said the council's report was especially timely since Congress is debating the 1985 Farm Bill.

"The cooperator program has a proven track record," said Bader, who is also chief executive officer of the American Soybean Association. "I'm confident Congress will want to continue a unique partnership whose results speak for themselves: more markets, more sales, more business for the U.S. agricultural sector."

Examples of cooperators' activities include:

- Developing more efficient dairy, poultry and livestock industries abroad, which then utilize increased amounts of U.S. feed-stuffs.

- Helping foreign customers make more efficient use of U.S. cotton and wheat by helping them modernize processing facilities.

- Identifying foreign barriers to selling U.S. products and helping get them removed.

Aer WayTM

THE BETTER WAY TO REVITALIZE THE SOIL AND INCREASE YIELD

The AER-WAY is an utility implement that relieves compaction, aerates, cultivates and renovates. It can function as a rotary hoe, a disc, a roller and a harrow. It saves fuel, time and fertilizer. It increases water percolation, bacterial life and root growth. It is an implement for pastureland, grassland, horse paddocks, general field crops, vegetable production, orchards, vineyards and turfgrass. The AER-WAY will increase your profits through lower costs and higher yields.

LARRY STINSON, Adams NY

We have got corn on everything from moldboarded to strict no till. Our best corn is where we used the Aer way before we planted with our Maxi merge which we added the no till options to last year. In our test plot on 4 July we could see the line across the plow where corn didn't curl. That line was where we used the Aer way at the three leaf stage. On July 19th there was a 10-14% difference depending on corn variety. We found that the Aer way worked beautifully to incorporate spring applied manure on corn ground. We used the Aer way on all of our alfalfa. We definitely see less heaving loss in the early spring with use of the Aer way in the fall. Our consultants tell us that our feeder roots are much more developed and the nodules are very active now.

HOW DO YOU GET FERTILIZER TO ALFALFA ROOTS?

Other Objectives of Aeration

It is possible and advisable in most soils to mobilize plant nutrients within the alfalfa plant root zone. In established stands, most new root development has been occurring in the bottom portion of the plow layer. Fertilizer applications have been made to the top of the plow layer. Until the plant realizes the investment that has been made for it, little effect if any on yield will be possible. Aeration is a two edged sword. Fertilizer moves to existing roots on the one hand, and simultaneously rooting activity is stimulated to occur in the top half of the plow layer where fertilizers have been concentrating.

As soils rest in an untilled condition they actually change in their ability to transport water. The movement of water through the soil causes silt and clay particles to relocate in the plow layer and form a layer which acts to reduce the rate at which water moves through the root zone. The AerWayTM tillage progress will mechanically disturb the silted layer and restore the soil's ability to maintain proper air/water relations.

Restoring normal air/water relationships is beneficial in several ways. Nodule activity and size has been observed to increase by aerating. The addition of atmospheric nitrogen in limited quantities supplies nitrogen to nodule bacteria.

Soil phosphorus levels improve where aeration has occurred. The action of aerobic bacteria which is stimulated with aeration converts phosphorus reserves into plant available ortho-phosphate forms.

Aeration has appeared to reduce weed pressure in alfalfa stands. Some shallow, fibrous rooted weeds are mechanically removed by the action of the AerWayTM tine. Reducing the concentration of fertility in the surface (which the weeds enjoy) and allowing greater access of nutrients to alfalfa improves the competitiveness of the alfalfa.

Manheim Farm Show erects new swine, sheep facility

BY JACK HUBLEY

MANHEIM — When the last nail is driven, the Manheim Farm Show grounds will have Lancaster County's only permanent sheep and hog barn with penning facilities and an indoor showing.

Farm Show Commission president Luke Burkhardt cites the high cost of tent rentals as one reason for building the new 60-by-120-foot building. Burkhardt notes that, in years past, the Farm Show spent about $2,000 a year to rent tents large enough to house the shows, and this did not include the cost of wiring.

"Tents don't come cheap, and once you put them up, there's no guarantee they're going to stay up, either," Burkhardt adds.

Though the fairgrounds has two permanent structures, one is used as a dairy and beef barn, while the other houses crafts, produce and commercial exhibits, says building chairman Marlin Becker.

Becker notes that the popularity of Manheim's swine and sheep events justifies the construction of permanent facilities. With about 100 hogs exhibited, Manheim hosts the county's largest hog show, says Becker. And, with registrations averaging 125 head, the farm show also hosts one of the county's larger sheep events, he said.

"This is strictly a farm show, not a fair," Becker points out, adding that the accent is on rural activities. No "concession-type" stands are permitted at the Manheim Farm Show. "We found out that this really helps keep the discipline problems down," he said.

The building, complete with concrete floor, will probably be finished by Sept. 1, in plenty of time for the farm show's Oct. 7, opening date. The $50,000 cost will be covered primarily by proceeds from the farm show's annual benefit sale held during the spring. Last year's sale grossed more than $19,000, leaving the commission with a $7,000 net profit, says Becker.

The building chairman expects that rental charges for other events will also help to defray construction and maintenance costs. Those interested in holding consignment or production sales, youth activities or other events in the new building should contact the Manheim Borough Office.

Becker emphasizes that much of the labor needed to erect the new facility is donated. Local builders providing free manpower include Bob Wolgemuth and Steigel Builders. Ronald Rohrer serves as the project's contractor.

Of the 16 workmen on the job the day that the accompanying photo was taken, only three were being paid. "It's great to see the community get behind a project like this," Becker concluded.

Starting at 7 a.m., workers had the last truss in place on the Manheim Farm Show's new swine and sheep building by 11 o'clock.

Grange urges poultry help

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania State Grange and the National Grange are supporting legislation in Congress which would extend payment protection under the Packers and Stockyards Act to poultry and eggs.

A bill recently introduced in the U.S. House by Pennsylvania Congressman George Gekas (R-17) would provide the same full payment protection to poultry producers as is currently in force for the red meat industry. In particular, the legislation requires poultry processors and handlers to pay producers promptly and sets up trust provisions for the poultry industry.

The Packers and Stockyards Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture, would have administrative authority to enforce the provisions of the bill. An identical bill is expected to be introduced in the Senate.

State Master Charles Wismer said, "The 1983 bankruptcy of Mandata Poultry in central Pennsylvania and similar bankruptcies in other states have pointed to the need to provide payment protection for poultry farmers. The State Grange, working in conjunction with the National Grange, started the ball rolling for such legislation to be introduced."

He added, "It's too late for the farmers who lost out in the Mandata bankruptcy. A few of them are in danger of losing their farms as a result of the losses they sustained."

Organizations in other poultry states with similar problems are following suit in support of the bill, Wismer said.

The State Grange is also working on the state level to pass a state law mandating payment in 21 days to poultry farmers. The legislation has passed the House and is awaiting Senate Agriculture Committee action on the legislators' return from summer recess.

Curtis and Johnson families dominate Erie Holstein Show

BY NANCY KUNICK
Staff Correspondent
WATERFORD — The Erie County Holstein Club hosted the 27th annual Holstein show Thursday, July 25, at the Waterford Fairgrounds.

Nearly 100 entries from Erie, Crawford and Warren counties made up the fine dairy breed exhibition.

Judge Dennis Carlberg, of Frewsburg, N.Y., selected the five-year-old C Brezie Hill Senator Robin as grand champion of the show. Owned jointly by Richard Curtis of Union City and Harry Firth of Spartansburg, Robin also earned the best udder award of the show.

The Curtis family showed all four champions Thursday. Richard Curtis owned the reserve grand champion, Hennerlein Triple Threat Solo. This first place three-year-old was also tapped for best udder in her class.

The junior champion, Campbell-Run Columbus Loni, was owned by daughter Christy Lynn Curtis. The top senior calf, Loni is sired by Leadfield Columbus.

Reserve junior champion was also a Richard Curtis and Harry Firth entry. The intermediate yearling, Lojun Kurt Hillery, is sired by Robthorn Rorae Veernatt Kurt.

But Curtis-Haven didn't quite "sweep" the show. The Johnson family, of Warren, claimed the prestigious premier breeder and premier exhibitor honors. Dean and Melinda Johnson were presented the awards by Erie County dairy princess Delina Kibbe.

Rootworm pesticide use to be restricted Sept. 1

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania farmers could be restricted from applying certain pesticides to control rootworm after Sept. 1, 1985, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Acting State Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Grubb said that after Sept. 1, the Environmental Protection Agency will require manufacturers to place restricted-use labels on certain granular formulations of eight pesticides. State regulations enforce proper use of these compounds.

Chemical and trade names of the affected products are: aldicarb (Temik 15G and 10G); carbofuran (Furadan 15G and 10G); disulfoton (Disyston 15G); fonofos (Dyfonate 10G and 20G); phorate (Thimet 15G and 20); ethoprop (Mocap 15G); fensulfothion (Dasanit 15G); and terbufos (Counter 15G).

"Our major concern is to insure correct usage of these products and avoid the creation of hazardous conditions," said Dr. Gerard J. Florentine, chief of the state Agriculture Department's Pesticide Control Division. "Each of these chemicals has been listed for restricted use at certain levels of active ingredients.

"The EPA has determined through its review in the Registration Standards program that these chemical formulations can have toxic effects," Florentine noted. The EPA Registration Standards program provides a comprehensive framework to make chemical-specific determinations. These determinations are based on all available data, the extent of potential hazards and timing considerations.

Florentine said that any of these products in the channel of trade on Sept. 1, 1986 must be relabeled with a restricted use label to prevent stockpiling for future use.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is responsible for pesticide registration and for certification of farmers and commercial applicators who purchase or use the restricted-use chemical in the Commonwealth. "Pennsylvania farmers and other applicators who use these compounds may become certified by passing a written examination," Grubb said.

Study materials for the examinations are available through the Penn State Correspondence Course Office, Room 307 Agriculture Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Farmers who have products currently in stock do not need certification to use the existing inventories for a one-year period. However, Grubb said he is encouraging farmers to apply for certification early because certification must be presented to the dealer when these restricted-use products are purchased.

More information on the EPA action and on pesticide use or certification is available through the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry, the Department's seven regional offices in Meadville, Williamsport, Tunkhannock, Gibsonia, Altoona, Summerdale and Creamery, or at a County Cooperative Extension Service office.

Chester County Holstein Field Day

Four Holstein enthusiasts won first-place prizes in the judging contest during the annual Chester County field day, held Tuesday at the Wilmer and Joyce Hostetter farm, Oxford.

At left is official judge and speaker for the evening, Ed Fry, of Fair Hill Farms, Chestertown, Md. Judging winners (from left) were: David Horning and Joe Lusby, who tied for first place in the youth division; Dwight Stoltzfus, first in the men's class; and Dorothea Hostetter, first in the women's competition.

A record number of Chester County Holstein breeders turned out for the annual field day. President Harold Bare, who chaired the event, estimated the crowd reached more than 200. The Hostetter operation involves sons Bill, Bernie, John and Barry, and includes two dairies and a grain elevator on 400 acres farmed.

Killer bees pose threat

PARK RIDGE, IL. — "Killer" bees discovered in California recently pose an "enormous" threat to agriculture, the nation's most important industry.

"More than $40 billion worth of agricultural commodities a year are dependent on domestic bees for pollination," said Don Rawlins, American Farm Bureau natural and environmental resources director. "These 'Africanized' bees are not as efficient as the domesticated honeybees, pollinating fewer blossoms and causing reduced yields. The invaders readily interbreed with domestic bees, passing on undesirable traits to the progeny. Maybe worst of all, the Africanized bee carries a parasite, the varroa mite, that devastates honeybees, causing 90 to 95 percent fatalities."

According to Rawlins, this is not the first time Africanized bees have been found in the U.S. "Two swarms were detected on ships in the ports of Baltimore and Tampa several years ago. Both were promptly eradicated," he said.

He warned that extensive searches must be undertaken near the California site to make certain no other swarms are present. "A honeybee swarm will number in the hundreds. An Africanized queen only needs 20 or 30 workers to start a new colony. So Africanized colonies are smaller and harder to find, in addition to spreading more rapidly due to smaller population requirements," he said. Once found, the bees can easily be eradicated with several common pesticides.

The "killer" label is an exaggeration, Rawlins said. "The sting of an Africanized bee is no more poisonous or painful than that of a honeybee. After an Africanized bee stings its victim, however, it is believed that a chemical is released that attracts and stimulates other Africanized bees, prompting them to attack, also."

Africanized bees look very similar to domestic bees and even trained entomologists must make 30 individual comparisons to tell the two varieties apart.

The aggressiveness traces back to the original swarm of African bees brought to Brazil in the 1950s by researchers. The bees escaped and spread northward over the decades.

Researchers, such as Dr. Orley Taylor of Kansas State University, predicted the arrival of Africanized bees in the U.S. by 1988. Rawlins said the bees found in an oil field in Kern County, California were probably brought in on equipment or machinery imported from Mexico, Costa Rica or other infested Central American countries.

Fayette learning center

UNIONTOWN, PA — The naming of the Study-Learning Center at the Fayette Campus of the Pennsylvania State University after J. Lewis Williams was approved by the Penn State Board of Trustees here today (July 13).

The facility, centrally located on the Fayette campus, is named after Williams, an alumnus, member of the board of trustees from 1955 through 1979, community leader and successful businessman.

A key figure in the founding of the Fayette Campus and a member of its Advisory Board for 19 years, Williams was named a distinguished alumnus of Penn State in 1970. He retired from the Board as trustee emeritus.

He combined a farm machinery dealership and a large dairy farm near Uniontown with service to the community, the University and agriculture.

A 1927 graduate of Penn State's agriculture course, Williams was named "Superior Farmer" by the Greater Uniontown Chamber of Commerce in 1952 and "Master Farmer" by "Pennsylvania Farmer" magazine in 1955.

An honorary member of the Pennsylvania County Agents Association, he served as president of both the Fayette County and Southwestern Pennsylvania Holstein Breeder Association, the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association and the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative.

For 19 years he was the secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Association of Artificial Breeding Cooperatives.

His service to the community included chairing the Fayette County Redevelopment Authority for more than a decade. He was also superintendent of the Fayette County Institutional District for 10 years and a county commissioner for eight years.

He died on March 7, 1984.

LIQUID SILAGE FORTIFIER

A revolutionary new concept in improving silages. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements including selenium. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.

Groff, Byers in close FFA hog show race

BY JACK HUBLEY
LANCASTER — Andy Groff got his FFA career off to a flying start on Thursday. In his first year of FFA competition, the 14-year-old Lampeter-Strasburg student went home with both grand champion and reserve champion heavyweight honors in Lancaster County's 23rd annual FFA Market Hog Show held at Lancaster Stockyards.

Show judge Larry Arnold of Womelsdorf, gave Groff's homegrown Duroc-York barrow the highest marks amid a field of 94 hogs in this year's show.

And, according to the young exhibitor, his 230-pound blue-ribbon porker, also named the show's middleweight champion, just may be the type of hog to beat this season. "This year I hear they're going for a deeper pig, and most of my pigs are that type," said Groff.

Groff's reserve champion in the heavyweight division was also a York-Duroc cross, a bit heavier at 245 pounds. Both hogs were bred and raised on the family's 120-sow farrowing operation on Lampeter Road near Lancaster.

Though Thursday's win marked Groff's debut in FFA hog competition, the son of John R. and Mary Sue Groff is no stranger to the showing, having exhibited swine as a 4-H'er for five years.

And shadowing Groff from the competition's beginning was Jeff Byers of Holtwood. Byers' 230-pound Duroc-Spot gilt placed second in its class to Groff's champion, then went on to be named reserve in the middleweight division, and finally reserve champion overall.

The son of John R. and Joan M. Byers, Jeff bought his winning pig from Keith Bard of Lewistown. A three-year veteran of FFA hog competition, Byers prefers a Duroc cross for the showing.

The Solanco High School junior is raising nine pigs for this year's show season and hopes to repeat his 1984 grand champion win at the Solanco Fair.

In sale action following the show, Hatfield Packing went home with the show's two top hogs, bidding $3 per pound for Groff's grand champion and $1.40 for Byers' reserve.

Receipts totalled $11,162 for the show's 94 hogs, for a sale average of 52 cents including champions, and 48 cents without champions.

Hatfield proved to be the most active buyer, offering the top bid for 32 hogs, with White Oak Mills of Manheim purchasing 18. Other buyers included Leidy Meats, Willie the Butcher, Mert McCoy, Walter M. Dunlap and Sons, Stoltzfus Meats, Inc., S.L. Heilbron and Gehman's Feed Mill.

WASHINGTON - Foreign investors who acquire or transfer any interest (other than a security interest) in agricultural land must report the transaction within 90 days to the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office. This is a requirement of the Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act and those who fail to report, or who are late in reporting face possible fines.

ASCS offices are responsible for keeping track of how much agricultural land is owned or controlled by foreign individuals or interests. Foreign investors have reported owning 14 million acres of agricultural land in the United States.

A foreign disclosure report must be filed when a single foreign individual, organization, or government holds a direct or indirect interest of 10 percent or more; when individuals, organizations, or governments, acting in concert, hold an aggregate interest of 10 percent or more; when a group of foreign individuals, organizations, and governments each with less than 10% and not acting in concert hold an aggregate of 50 percent interest or more in agricultural land.

For reporting purposes, agricultural land is any tract of more than 10 acres now in agricultural, forestry or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use when purchased and land later converted to agricultural use. Foreigners who own or have an interest in 10 acres or less do not need to report unless annual proceeds from the sale of agricultural land or products exceeds $1000. More information concerning these reporting provisions is available at any office of the ASCS.

Agent named in Centre County

BELLEFONTE - Efficient agriculture is the aim of Centre County's new extension agent.

"I want to help farmers become efficient through better crop management," says William Scott Harkcom, "and I want to encourage new agricultural methods based on university data and the farmer's own experience."

Harkcom's appointment was announced by W. Wayne Hanish, acting dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture and director of the Cooperative Extension Service. Harkcom is responsible for agronomic program coordination and general agricultural instruction in Centre County, so he'll be spending a lot of time outdoors. But that's fine with him.

"I wanted to work with more farmers," he says. "I want to continue working in the field, but at the same time I want to work with more county farmers."

Harkcom earned his bachelor's degree in agronomy from Penn State in 1981. Before graduation, he worked as a university agronomy lab assistant. He then became a technical assistant of fertilizer production at the Reading Bone Fertilizer Co. in Reading, PA. Since 1981, he has been a crop technician for the Centre County Crop Improvement Association in Bellefonte, PA.

ASA showing China ways to use soybeans

ST. LOUIS — China hungers for new technology. U.S. soybean farmers are taking the edge off the hunger—and building market potential for their crop—by promoting industries in China which use soybeans.

Through market development projects of the American Soybean Association—which are funded by soybean farmers and the Foreign Agricultural Service—China is expanding its use of soybeans.

Ken Lepley is an animal nutritionist for the American Soybean Association. In 1981, Lepley made his first trip to China for the Soybean Association. Four years and three trips later, Lepley is enthusiastic about China's progress.

The opportunity to work with the Chinese and witness China's technological advancements has been one of the highlights of a long career promoting soybeans, according to Lepley. He retires in October after 11 years with the Soybean Association.

Lepley says, "When I made my first trip to China, most dairymen there were using whole milk to raise replacement dairy calves, and they were destroying the bull calves at birth. We set up a feeding trial to show them how to use milk replacers and dry feed—in place of milk—to raise dairy calves. This procedure would save them more than 500 liters of milk per calf raised, and allow them to raise the bull calves for beef instead of slaughtering them.

"On my most recent trip to China, in June, I saw dairymen following through with part of what they'd learned. Replacement calves were being raised on reduced amounts of whole milk and switched to dry feed at a younger age, and bull calves were being kept for dairy-beef," says Lepley.

He adds, "This is just one way China is growing. We're also seeing rapid improvements in poultry and swine, and in livestock feed production."

According to Lepley, during the next 15 years China plans to build 200 to 400 new feedmills to meet its growing need for livestock and poultry. "The large feedmills will be constructed near the coast," says Lepley. "These mills would represent an ideal opportunity one day to sell soybeans or soybean meal and feed grains to China."

Chinese government officials told Lepley that by 1990 China will produce 50 million metric tons of feed. And by the year 2000, China will double feed production to 100 million metric tons.

"China grows soybeans," says Lepley. "And they have the potential to compete with us for world soybean markets. We have to show China ways to use their soybeans instead of exporting them. If China uses 10 percent soybean meal in rations, they will need 10 million metric tons of soybean meal to meet their needs in the year 2000. That's equivalent to 464 million bushels or one-fourth of the U.S. soybean production in 1984."

Red & White directors

Members of the Penn-York Red and White Dairy Cattle Assoc. re-elected three directors during last Saturday's field day at Ken Myer's Myerose Farm, Elizabethtown. Emil Peters (left), Port Matilda; Kathy Smith, Dundee, N.Y.; and Ken Myer received the group's vote of confidence.

In addition to a short business meeting, other Red and White field day activities included a judging contest and a short presentation by Dr. Alan McCauley, of Em-Tran. Winner of the judging contest was Barry Donmoyer of Annville. He received five units of Jon-Red from Cliff Gible, a representative of Select Sires.

AJCC promotes young sire sampling

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The American Jersey Cattle Club is working to make sure young sire sampling pays. Eugene P. Barton, AJCC Superintendent of Records, recently announced over $800 in performance program credits to owners of daughters of young sires nominated in the AJCC Young Sire Program.

When a young bull entered in the AJCC Young Sire Program receives his first USDA Sire Summary, the AJCC provides one free year's enrollment in the Total Performance Evaluation program for each of his daughters with usable DHI production information. These credits, equalling $5 per cow, went to 111 herd owners across the country.

Also, daughters of AJCC Young Sire Program nominees are registered at half price if they are recorded before they are six months old and before their sire reaches 32 months of age. This encourages early sampling of approved young sires and accurate identification of their daughters.

Barton also stated that early sampling of selected young sires will increase the number of superior proven bulls available through AI studs. Those herds sampling young sires are also the first to own daughters of highly plus proven, popular AI sires.

Rabies continues its advance through state

BY SALLY DUNMIRE
Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG — Rabies continues its advance north and east through the commonwealth, with 139 cases confirmed thus far this year. Wildlife is bearing the brunt of the epidemic, with 90 affected raccoons recorded, followed by lesser number of skunks, bats and groundhogs.

With about one-half of the virus' April-through-October active season past, four cows, four cats and two dogs have also contacted the disease.

According to Dr. Robert Jones, a Pennsylvania Department of Health veterinarian, this problem "may go on forever." This year, the epidemic is centered in Adams County with 46 cases, and Cumberland, with 27. York has reported six cases; Perry, nine; Mifflin, three; Lancaster, one case. Huntington County also recorded its first confirmed rabies case last week.

Statistics indicate that the hardest hit counties of last year, Bedford, Fulton, and Franklin, have found some relief. Bedford has reported no case this year, and Fulton County had only one, a rabid cow near Warflesburg. The number of confirmed 1985 cases is also much lower in Franklin County. Dr. Jones attributes the reduction in these hard-hit areas, in part, to the "infected population dying off. Many of the wild animals, especially in the rugged mountainous and rural areas die without ever coming into contact with domestic animals or humans."

Rural residents are also accustomed to dealing with wild animals. Reports continue to circulate of scraggly, staggering raccoons wandering into farmyards and pastures during the day, where they are quickly dispatched.

"I wouldn't recommend open season on all raccoons or skunks you see during the daytime," Dr. Jones said. "The most important thing to look for is a staggering gait in a sick-looking animal." A wild animal that has lost its fear of humans or a pet that is sick or suddenly becomes vicious should also be suspect.

"Most of these cases are going unreported," the veterinarian said. "People are just burying the sick animals without getting them tested. If the animal comes into contact with pets or people, however, it should be tested."

Any bites, scratches, or even petting, as children are prone to do, should be considered contact.

"We have never had a known case of someone contacting rabies any other way than from a bite, but theoretically, if the virus find its way beneath the skin through a wound or scratch, that person could possibly develop rabies. All cases to date have been from bites though," Dr. Jones emphasized.

One fact that Dr. Jones was quick to point out was that, as the number of cases of dog rabies has declined, so has the number of human cases. "Prior to the early 1950's, dog rabies ran between 8,000 and 9,000 cases per year throughout the entire country, Dr. Jones pointed out. "Hundreds of people died from rabies at that time. Then, a vaccine was developed to immunize dogs against rabies, and the number of cases declined dramatically, to around 200 cases per year nationwide.

Correspondingly, the number of human cases dropped to one or two cases per year for all 50 states. The average number of human cases since 1960 has been three nationwide.

Significantly, 84 percent of all people who developed rabies were bitten either by a dog or cat," Dr. Jones said.

These figures clearly point out that the number-one defense a person can take to reduce the risk of contracting rabies is pet vaccination. "If you can afford to feed your pet, you can afford to vaccinate it," Dr. Jones emphasized. This is responsible animal ownership. People will spend more on kitty litter than they will on vaccinating the cat against rabies," he said.

The average cost of vaccination runs between two and four dollars per animal. Boosters should be given on schedule. Dr. Jones also recommends vaccinating any pleasure horses or prize breeding bulls. But when it comes to an entire herd of cows, the expense could be prohibitive. "If you are talking about 100 cows, consult your local vet for advice."

"Farm cats are probably the most dangerous of all. They are territorial, roam at night when raccoons and skunks are on the prowl, and do a lot of biting and scratching by nature," Dr. Jones pointed out.

Especially if there are children on the farm, vaccinating the barn cats is an excellent idea. Children, looking to help a sick cat, could be the most likely victims. Castrating the male felines is a good idea also, to help keep their numbers down. Significantly, two out of the three human rabies victims who died last year were children—a 12-year-old Williamsport boy and a Houston girl.

There is one other line of defense against rabies, a series of three pre-exposure injections. These are recommended for those who, like veterinarians, humane society personnel, game protectors, trappers and taxidermists, have regular contact with large numbers of unvaccinated animals. If by chance one of these people who has received the vaccination series is bitten by a rabid animal, he would need two additional booster shots to avoid contracting the disease.

For someone who is bitten by a rabid animal without the pre-exposure series, five injections would be required. These shots must be given before any of the flu-like symptoms appear. Once the symptoms have shown up, the mortality rate is nearly 100 percent. In humans, the incubation period can be as short as 12 days and up to a year after the rabid bite.

If you are bitten by an animal you suspect has rabies, washing the area as soon as possible with soap and warm water will reduce your chances of contracting rabies by 80 to 90 percent. Immediately contact a doctor, or the state Health Department. The special rabies hotline number is 1-800-692-7254. After hours, on weekends or holidays, call 1-717-737-5349.

To have a suspected animal tested, call one of these numbers to find out where to submit the carcass. Be careful not to damage the head when putting the animal down, and refrigerate until it can reach a lab.

Signs to look for in dairy cows include lower milk production, loss of appetite, reduced water intake, sticky, copious foam around the mouth, choking, listlessness or aggression. Occasionally the rabid cow will bawl a great deal. If you suspect one of your cows is rabid, first isolate her from the rest. Avoid contact with her, especially her saliva, and call a veterinarian. If the cow proves to be rabid, all animals on the farm will need to be vaccinated, including dogs and cats. If in doubt, all persons who may have come in contact with the animal should be treated by a doctor.

Ag engineering chairman retires at Penn State UNIVERSITY PARK — Dr. Harold V. Walton, professor and head of the department of agricultural engineering, retired July 31 with emeritus status. He has served as department head since 1976.

Having taught at Penn State since 1947, Dr. Walton accepted a position at the University of Missouri as professor of agricultural engineering in 1962 and served as chairman of that department for seven years.

From 1969 to 1971, Dr. Walton was chief-of-party for a University of Missouri program with the U.S. Agency for International Development at the Orissa University of Agriculture and Technology in Bhubaneswar, Orissa, which is on the eastern coast of India.

He was responsible for a University Development Program and an Agricultural Production Program to establish the Extension teaching model. An important aspect of these programs was faculty training and development at the University of Missouri.

While at the University of Missouri, Dr. Walton's primary research was in the area of agricultural structures and environment and later, in the area of food engineering. He has published numerous articles on the physical properties of poultry products, including "Composition of Shell Waste from Egg Breaking Plants," "The Viscosity of Egg Substitute Mixtures," and "Using Eggshells in Poultry Feed."

As a result of his research, some egg processors in Missouri use a dehydration system to eliminate shell wastes. Feed producers then process the dried material, which is high in calcium and protein, to use as a nutritional additive to chicken feed.

Dr. Walton returned to Penn State in 1976 to be head of the Department of Agricultural Engineering. "Our program in agricultural engineering is offered jointly by the College of Agriculture and the College of Engineering. The cooperative nature of this arrangement adds strength to both our graduate and undergraduate degrees. We have excellent relations with both colleges," he says. The department also offers graduate and undergraduate degrees in agricultural mechanization, granted by the College of Agriculture.

Although primarily concerned with administrative duties, Dr. Walton has taught the senior seminar in agricultural engineering. He has served on the Executive Committees of both the Colleges of Agriculture and the College of Engineering and on the Curriculum Task Force of the College of Engineering. He served on the Staff Power Planning Task Force for the College of Agriculture, which examined the organization of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service.

Dr. Walton served as a consultant for the Organization of American States in Trinidad and Tobago in 1980, evaluating their agricultural engineering services and served as director of the League for International Food Education.

In 1942 he received a bachelor of science degree and in 1950 as master of science degree, both in agricultural engineering from Penn State. He was awarded his Ph.D. in agricultural engineering from Purdue University in 1961.

Dr. Walton has served as chairman of the Agricultural Engineering Division of the American Society for Engineering Education (ASEE); as vice-chairman and chairman of the North Atlantic Region of the American Society of Agricultural Engineering (ASAE), and this year, began serving as regional director of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

In 1942 he was initiated into Gamma Sigma Delta and Phi Kappa Phi honor societies and in 1951, was elected to Sigma Xi. He became a member of Alpha Epsilon in 1962, and was named a Fellow of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers in 1973.

After retirement, Dr. Walton and his wife, Velma, plan to visit their three children, Richard in Texas, Marilyn in Louisiana and Carol in Nevada. "I plan to bring some order to my stamp collection and will continue to be active with professional associations."

SOUTHAMPTON — Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative is sponsoring six youth to attend the 58th annual meeting of the American Institute of Cooperation, July 29 to Aug. 1 at Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan.

The six youth, all sons or daughters of Inter-State members, will represent the cooperative at the National Institute on Cooperative Education. Their selection was based on an activities report and participation at the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives Summer Institute held earlier this month at Juniata College.

Representing Inter-State are: Bill Blank, R1 Parkesburg; Susan Kaye Fisher, R1 McVeytown; Michael C. Hershey, Gordonville; Kathy Sollenberger, R1 Williamsburg; David Hudson, R1 Milton, Del.; and Linda Pool, Micketown, N.J.

A student at Octorara High School, Blank is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elam R. Blank. He is student advisor of his FFA Chapter and is treasurer of the Chester County FFA Chapter. He is a member of the National Honor Society, the National Distinguished High School Students Society and the Mennonite Youth Fellowship group.

Fisher, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Fisher, attends Mt. Union Senior High School. She is active in the Captain Jack FFA

Chapter and serves as an officer. She is a member of the Future Business Leaders of America, the Girls Athletic Association and the Atkinson Mills Church youth group and bell choir. She is also president of her local 4-H Club.

He is a 4-H member and participates in dairy and agriculture activities. He also competes in team roping contests and is a member of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, the Eastern Shore Ropers Association and the Cowboy Chapter of Christian Athletes.

A student at Woodstown High School, Pool is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Owen Pool. She is vice president of her FFA Chapter and participates on the dairy products judging team. Named the New Jersey FFA Member of the Year, she is also a member of the varsity softball and hockey teams and is a 4-H dairy and cooking club member.

The American Institute of Cooperation, based in Washington, D.C., sponsors the National Institute on Cooperative Education to explain the role of cooperatives in today's business world. The theme for this year's conference, "Strategies for Strength," focuses on strategies planned and designed to keep cooperatives strong, efficient and innovative.

John Burket, Scott Fisher (buyer's representative), and Rich Chesney admire one of the top selling animals at the Blair County Holstein Sale. In the box are Warren Bender, pedigrees; Sheila Biddle, Blair County Dairy Princess; and Art Kling, auctioneer.

Gypsy moth treatments completed in nine states

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has completed seasonal treatments against outlying infestations of gypsy moths in nine states, according to a USDA official.

Bert M. Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Tennessee, Washington and Wisconsin participated in the cooperative treatment program for gypsy moths sponsored and supported by APHIS.

"To treat these infested areas, each state used an integrated approach to pest management," Hawkins said. "The major treatment used was the bacterial insecticide Bacillus thuringiensis (B.t.). Tennessee also used Dimilin, an insect growth regulator. Indiana relied mainly on intensive trapping of gypsy moths, while other states combined this technique with other treatments."

Hawkins said that two states, Ohio and Washington, used a variation of the sterile-male technique for treatment. In this technique, male gypsy moths are reared in the laboratory, partially sterilized and then mated with normal females. Eggs they produce are placed on trees, where they hatched into normal-looking caterpillars that eat their usual fill of leaves. After emerging as adults, however, the moths are totally sterile. Matings between the sterile and wild gypsy moths produce eggs that will not hatch, thus ending further reproduction.

"Effectiveness of the various methods of treatment is being checked with insect traps baited to catch adult moths after they emerge," Hawkins said. "Depending on weather and climate, the first adults will emerge in late June. Only after trapping is completed can we begin to evaluate the effectiveness of the treatments. In some areas, treatments may have to be extended over several years to achieve eradication."

Gypsy moths are firmly established in the northeastern United States. Pockets of infestation often occur elsewhere when gypsy moth egg masses are moved from infested to noninfested areas.

"I urge people not to move outdoor household articles or recreational vehicles from infested areas without first removing gypsy moth egg masses," Hawkins said. "Homeowners and campers should closely inspect such articles before leaving infested states. Preventing a new pocket of infestation can save hundreds of thousands, even millions of dollars."

The average liveweight decreased five pounds to 233 pounds. Lamb and mutton slaughter was 1.2 million pounds liveweight, down 14 percent. The number slaughtered was 11,900, down 15 percent. The average liveweight increased one pound to 103 pounds.

Nutritional imbalances cause reproductive problems in dairy cattle

By George F.W. Haenlein
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware Reproductive Problems Can Have Nutritional Causes

NEWARK, Del. — Several reproductive problems in dairy cattle result from physiological (glandular) changes caused primarily by nutritional imbalances, not disease organisms. Abortions, repeat breeding, anestrus, silent estrus, and retained placenta can all be influenced severely by nutrition. Of course, changes in amount of daylight and hormone implantation or injections also affect reproduction.

Four major nutritional categories influence reproductive performance: energy, protein, minerals, and vitamins. Fifty years ago, scientists at the University of Wisconsin discovered the role and importance of vitamin D in bovine diets. More recently, interest was focused on vitamin E in relation to reproductive problems. Currently, beta-carotene and selenium are receiving much attention.

Let's take a closer look at the effects of certain nutrients and their imbalances in dairy cattle. Energy—"Hollow belly disease," poor pastures, drought, unpalatable feed (silage, hay and concentrates), reduced feed intake, scouring, and loss of body weight due to heavy milking are conditions that lower the cow's energy supply. The opposite condition—so-called "flushing" or increased supply of energy—can stimulate ovulation and estrus. This practice has long been used by sheep breeders to synchronize estrus and to increase the lamb crop.

Energy supply is directly related to normal reproductive function in dairy cattle. Newborn calves that are weak due to lack of energy in utero have trouble surviving. Puberty and first estrus will sometimes be delayed several months in calves that are fed low levels of energy. Those becoming fat on too much energy will experience irregular estrus cycles and delayed conception. Heifers that have conceived but are un-thrifty because of a lack of energy will have problems in calving or may even abort. Reduced milk secretion also results.

Thus, energy shortages are serious impediments at all stages of reproduction, but energy supply excesses are just as detrimental. Overconditioning, especially when cows or heifers are prepared for shows or are on a show circuit, is a frequent problem. Remember this as the annual show season gets under way again.

Under range conditions, shortages of energy supplies stunt the growth of young pregnant heifers and may cause so-called stress abortions due to low blood-glucose levels that trigger hyperactivity of the adrenal gland.

In our dairy herd at the University of Delaware we have now placed all our cows, as well as our heifers down to 6 months of age, on electronic feeders. This enables us to feed each individual exactly what she needs or deserves—no more, but also no less—and not just energy.

Protein—A shortage, as well as excess, of this nutrient also causes reproductive problems, though these are not quite as dramatic as those caused by a lack of energy. Protein and energy interact, so when energy supplies are adequate but protein is deficient, estrus, puberty, and pregnancy are delayed or impaired. Amino acids are a basic part of protein needs but the cow's specific amino acid needs have not been clearly defined under normal production circumstances. Methionine has shown some promise in cattle experiments.

Minerals—A phosphorus shortage is more likely than a calcium deficiency under high roughage conditions because forages are short on phosphorus. Adequate phosphorus supplies are critical for normal reproductive efficiency. A level of 0.4 percent phosphorus in the total diet and a Ca to P ratio of about 1.2 to 1.0 is recommended.

This ratio also indicates that calcium is an essential feed ingredient for normal reproduction. But its bioavailability and intestinal absorption vary widely, depending on content, pH, lipids that form insoluble soaps, carbohydrates and vitamin D activation. Interaction with other minerals, such as manganese, is also critical. The large amounts of calcium the cow loses daily in milk must be replaced.

Selenium is of particular interest in relation to reproductive problems because it has been linked to a reduction in retained placenta. Soils in certain parts of the U.S.—the East Coast, Great Lakes, New England, Florida, and the Northwest—are deficient in selenium. In these regions, routine supplementation in feed or by injection is indicated. Brewer's grain is a good natural source of selenium.

Salt shortages will cause reduced feed intake, dirt chewing, poor haircoat, and heat stress, all of which indirectly affect reproductive efficiency. Normally, cows should receive 1 percent salt in their concentrate supplement. Salt is also a convenient carrier for trace minerals such as zinc, manganese, iodine, cobalt, iron, molybdenum, copper, and sulfur, which have a role in normal reproductive performance. Zinc and manganese affect the production of eggs and sperm, libido and the sex ratios of calves.

Vitamins—Vitamin A and its precursor, carotene, are of particular importance for efficient reproductive function. Vitamin A is essential for normal sperm production. It's also important for the normal function of mucal membranes, including those in the reproductive tract.

Conversion of carotene to vitamin A may be inhibited by nitrates in the feed from drought-stricken grasses or from corn and small grains which were fertilized heavily with nitrogen. It may also be affected by phosphorus deficiency, protein deficiency, a high energy-low roughage diet, or by heat stress.

Possible effects of vitamin A shortage include the birth of dead or weak calves, retained placentas or even abortions. Vision abnormalities are typical diagnostic symptoms of vitamin A deficiency. Fresh and dried green forages are good sources of vitamin A, but commercial supplements of vitamins A, D, and E are quite inexpensive and should be added to commercial concentrate mixtures at ratios of 5 to 1 to 0.01. Cattle should receive 3,500 international units of vitamin A equivalent per day for every 100 pounds of bodyweight for maintenance, pregnancy, growth and milk production.

Vitamin D is implicated in reproductive losses through its effects on phosphorus and calcium utilization. Supplementation is important for unthrifty animals.

It has been suggested that Vitamin E may play a beneficial role in reproduction, but hard evidence is lacking. However, it is important as a feed supplement and antioxidant to prevent off-flavors in milk. It also has excellent healing properties for injured tissue.

Although it is assumed that rumen microbes produce enough of the B vitamins to meet cow requirements, different microbial species have different vitamin B-producing abilities and changing the cow's diet will change her rumen microbe population. For example, corn is known to be low in the amino acid precursors required for some rumen B vitamin synthesis, so if more corn is suddenly added to a cow's ration, problems due to B vitamin deficiencies can develop which affect reproduction indirectly.

Pizzeria earns "REAL" cheese award

WILLIAMSPORT — Brownies Pizzeria located in Scranton, was one of four winners in a "REAL" Cheese Pizza Maker contest sponsored by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADA/DC). In addition to being recognized for using 100 percent "Real" Cheese in their pizza recipes, the store, in business for over 25 years, receives 200 pounds of free Mozzarella cheese.

The Pizza Maker contest was a local extension of a national promotion campaign which encourages local pizza store operators to use domestically produced "REAL" Cheese. By participating in the program, they receive brightly colored door decals and table tents which inform patrons of the quality cheese used on their pizzas.

According to Bill Salerno, owner and operator of "Brownies," improved quality for the customer was his reason for signing up with the program. "There is a big difference between 'REAL' and imitation cheeses," said Salerno. "Customers complain about competitors who use imitations."

Approximately 700 pizzerias are currently participating in the ADA/DC program in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It is one of a number of programs the ADA/DC uses to increase the use of milk and milk products in the foodservice area.

NFO head criticizes ruling in dairy co-op case

CORNING, IOWA. — President DeVon Woodland of the National Farmers Organization said today he is extremely disappointed with a U.S. District Court's refusal to award damages to NFO in an antitrust action against three dairy cooperatives found liable earlier for conspiring to monopolize milk marketing.

The Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis ruled in 1982 that Associated Milk Producers, Inc., Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., and Central Milk Producers Cooperative were liable for damages because they "did conspire to monopolize milk marketing and eliminate competition through use of predatory, anti-competitive, and unlawful tactics." That ruling reversed the decision of U.S. District Judge

John Oliver of Kansas City that the NFO had failed to prove a violation of the law.

The case was returned to Judge Oliver for determination of the amount of damages to be recovered by the NFO. But he ruled on July 5 that the NFO had failed to prove that the three cooperatives had to pay any damages.

In his July 5 decision Judge Oliver also ruled that the cooperatives should be enjoined from bringing sham litigation to injure the NFO, as they had done in this case, and that the NFO was entitled to monetary awards for costs and attorneys' fees and as a penalty against Associated Milk Producers, Inc., for destruction of evidence. He directed that the parties promptly engage in procedures designed to ascertain the amount of those awards, following which he will enter his final judgment in the case.

"We believed that we had proved our damages in the manner approved by the court of appeals, and have been surprised by Judge Oliver's decision," Woodland said. "His decision on damages raises the possibility of another appeal in this long fight to see that justice is done."

No decision on an appeal needs to be made until Judge Oliver enters his final judgment, which may not be for several months.

Musser Forests, Inc., diversifies for success in nursery business

BY MARTHA GEHRINGER
Staff Correspondent
He calls himself a businessman who happens to be selling trees, rather than a farmer. The business he founded and manages is Musser Forests, Inc., a firm that sells roughly 40 million trees a year from its 14,000 acres scattered in a 30-mile radius from the business' headquarters near Indiana, Pa.

Fred Musser, Sr., established Musser Forests in 1928. This was the Depression era, when farmers were going out of business at an alarming rate, and farmland was going for outrageously low prices.

Though Fred's original intent was to buy the land for investment purposes, he soon found himself in the business of selling wild Christmas trees. The next step was to hire nurseryman Don Craig.

As the business began to grow, additional employees were hired, including a propagator for the greenhouses and a forester to care for the nursery stock.

When the grounds were being laid out, the nursery land was placed on the better, flatter land, with the poorer, hillier areas reserved for Christmas tree propagation. About 600 acres were originally planted in pine and spruce seedlings, either for Christmas trees or for a timber crop. One species introduced on the farm was Scotch pine. This variety proved to be so successful that the firm worked extensively with it, and now offers a special Musser strain of Scotch pine in their catalog.

Begun in 1938, the nursery operation reflects the success of this new Scotch pine strain. Sixty seedbeds were planted, and a single price sheet was mailed to Christmas tree growers. Since that time, more tree varieties have been added, a second seedling nursery has been established and a 24-page mail order catalog has been printed.

About the same time that nur-

sery number-two was being developed, Musser Forests moved to its present location, six miles north of Indiana on Route 119, and established a third nursery at their new headquarters. At this location were the offices, a packing building, a six-unit greenhouse and a 30-acre lake for irrigation.

Later, three more nurseries were developed. These nurseries are used for more evergreen seedlings and a full line of hardwood seedlings, ground covers, rooted cuttings and ornamentals.

The seedlings are sold at two to three years of age by one of three methods, including wholesale to other growers and landscapers, by mailorder or retail. Musser Forests is one of only a few nurseries nationwide that sells retail, offering about 800 different varieties.

Among the customers for these seedlings is the conservation district. The district plants varieties that will provide food and cover for gamebirds.

Operating from March to November, Musser Garden Center offers the largest selection of nursery stock in western Pennsylvania.

Though its seedling sales have remained constant for the past several years, the firm's container operation has continued to grow.

Begun in 1960, this facet of the business has grown to include a million plants on 12 acres. The containers are sold at their garden center on a retail or wholesale basis.

One of the uses for the container plants sold through the garden center is ground cover for suburban and rural areas. Many evergreens are sold for windbreaks, boundaries and fencelines, and owners of small properties are particularly fond of rhododendron, the firm reports.

An innovative purchase was recently made by an Indiana-area dairy farmer who bought thousands of barbary plants to be used as a substitute for fencing. The plant's sharp thorns repel cows, and no fence mending is required.

Though Musser's varied nursery enterprises have proven successful, the main focus remains on their Christmas tree business. The firm ranks as one of the largest growers in the country, shipping trees from coast to coast and Canada. Musser has recently implemented the practice of freezing Christmas trees in an effort to provide fresh, quality trees to all areas of the country. The trees are shipped from Thanksgiving day to the middle of December. In order to provide trees with the proper shape, crews at Musser Forests are busy shearing trees for two months beginning June 15.

Seed selection is an important part of improving the quality of their stock. By using quality seeds, trees stay green without the use of paint. The firm is also working with grafting and selecting new clones for a broader and more selective genetic base.

Expansion continues, with Musser's two bulldozers clearing about 700 acres a year for increased Christmas tree production.

An integral part of the business is its advertising department. This division is responsible for mailorder advertising in more than 100 publications, as well as radio, television and billboard advertising. The division is also responsible for catalog production.

Each department is overseen by a foreman who is a long-time employee. Fred Musser Sr. serves as president, with his son, Fred, Jr., as vice president, and daughter Nancy in charge of sales and advertising.

Through a cooperative staff, and a responsive attitude toward the needs of its customers, Musser Forests has become a western Pennsylvania success story.

Year-Old seedlings are housed under miles of shade racks. More than 40 million seedlings, transplants and rooted cuttings are produced each year.

Standards set for tomato juice

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued a final rule revising the voluntary U.S. standards for grades of canned tomato juice and establishing standards for grades of tomato juice from concentrate.

John J. Gardner, a marketing official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said USDA developed the final rule at the request of major segments of the tomato juice industry.

Gardner said the final rule will:

- Set separate standards for grades of tomato juice from concentrate.

- Modernize the format of the standards to include definitions of terms and easy-to-read tables.

- Remove the word "canned" from the canned tomato juice grade standard because other types of processors and containers are now being used.

— Redesignate the grade name "U.S. Grade C" to "U.S. Grade B" with no quality change.

Gardner said the rule will improve the standards and promote orderly and efficient marketing of tomato juice and tomato juice from concentrate.

The mixed results, he noted, while "not terribly encouraging," are also "not terribly discouraging, either."

One important effect of the program, he noted, is that, if the referendum is passed, the industry "should be able to find out, for once (and maybe for all) whether and to what degree advertising of dairy products does pay."

Smith concluded by noting that, whatever the result of the program, growth had occurred in demand and consumption. And that meant good things for the dairy industry.

"I think if I were a dairy farmer, I would prefer to produce for a market that is steady or expanding, rather than for a market that is steady, if not declining," Smith concluded.

Representatives from Federal Order 4, the National Dairy Board, Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Board also presented information about their organizations and their role in marketing and promotional activities.

Greenhouse energy loss

ITHACA — A new energy conservation manual for commercial greenhouse operations is now available from Cornell Cooperative Extension. The 40-page illustrated handbook was written jointly by agricultural engineers from three state universities in the Northeast.

This publication is especially useful to growers, greenhouse operators and managers, construction firms and materials suppliers, farm business consultants, and others servicing the greenhouse industry.

Energy for heating typically makes up from 70 to 85 percent of the total energy costs for commercial greenhouse operations in the northern United States. Heating is also the major expense for greenhouse enterprises in southern states, according to the authors.

"Energy Conservation for Commercial Greenhouses" (NRAE-3, $4) discusses principles of heat loss, greenhouse site selection and design, construction materials, insulation materials and systems, fuels and heating, and ventilation and cooling. One section compares various systems for using heated greenhouse space and their relative efficiency.

The handbook offers a comparison of greenhouse glazing materials, their costs, advantages and disadvantages, characteristics of light transmission, and estimated life service. Worksheets and sample calculations show how to compute heat loss from typical greenhouse configurations.

The publication can be obtained by mail at $4 per copy from the Cornell Distribution Center, 7 Research Park, Ithaca, NY 14850. Make checks or money orders payable to Cornell University in U.S. funds only.

Dairy referendum

ready to claim victory for the infant promotions program.

Penn State ag economics professor Blair Smith noted that 16 of the nation's largest co-ops already have block voted in favor of continuing the promotional programs.

That meant, he said, that about 92,000 of the nation's 180,000 producers already are on record in support of the promotional program.

But individual producers, he noted, can register an opposing vote by sending in a separate ballot. And thus today's victory on paper could melt away in the hot August sun.

Although the speakers and panelists all seemed to support the concept of dairy promotion there was some insecurity about the recent evaluation of the first several months of the current national promotions.

In separating the results of the current promotions from those voluntary programs in place before the current, mandated activity, Smith noted that though the combined effect was clearly beneficial, the new promotions may not be paying their way as an investment.

He quickly noted, however, that all the evidence is not in... and the current programs, once fully established, may prove to be very

Consumers to suffer if farm income drops

ST. LOUIS — Farmers won't be the only ones suffering if the new 1985 Farm Bill reduces net farm income. U.S. consumers could find themselves paying higher interest rates while the nation suffers from slower general economic growth, higher unemployment and an increase in the federal deficit.

That's the upshot of a report from Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates of Philadelphia. Agricultural interests hope this new material will persuade Congress to carefully consider the economy-wide impacts of a rapid reduction in farm support levels.

"For years we've told urban congressmen even though farmers are only three percent of the population, we have a big effect on the total economy. But we've never before had the economic evidence which this study provides," explains Varel Bailey, President of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), which commissioned the Wharton Study.

Bailey's "evidence" is a comprehensive four-phase research effort involving several institutions:

- Farm Journal magazine conducted a national survey which determined agricultural debt status by region, type of farm and type of farm operator.

- The Food and Agricultural Policy Research Institute (FAPRI) at Iowa State University (ISU) and the University of Missouri examined alternative farm program designs and estimated corresponding net farm income levels and other performance measures for agriculture.

- Phase three combined the results of the debt survey with those of the farm program analysis to estimate potential shortfalls in farm debt repayments. This effort was done at ISU by FAPRI economists.

- Finally, the projected farm debt default numbers were fed into the general economy modeling system at Wharton to measure its impact on the general economy.

"Congress already knew many farmers were going bankrupt," says Bailey. "To get more attention, we had to show them our problems would affect everyone else, costing jobs and increasing interest rates."

Preliminary results of the Wharton study are indeed significant, says Bailey. For example, interest rates paid by consumers could go up one to two percentage points by 1987 unless farm income is maintained at its current level. This substantial increase in short-term loan costs would have negative impacts on the automotive, housing and other industries which are strongly influenced by interest rates.

The elimination of urban-area jobs is another consequence of the unresolved farm financial crisis. Wharton estimates that up to 275,000 jobs outside of agriculture could be lost. That's three out-of-work consumers for each job lost in the agricultural sector. The study also projects the national debt could swell an additional $20 billion averaging about $5 billion per year during the latter part of the decade.

These potential "costs" to the general economy are likely to be higher than the estimated costs of preventative measures points out Bailey.

Armed with preliminary information, the NCGA along with the involved economists have been briefing congressional farm leaders on the four-phase study.

"Hopefully, this information will receive the attention of urban Congressmen and the national media," says Bailey.

"Congress is faced with a difficult choice in writing the 1985 Farm Bill," adds Bailey. "Some farm bill proposals recommend immediate adoption of a strict market-oriented approach with reduced farm supports. That would not only put agriculture in a precarious financial position, but also create problems for the whole economy."

The Wharton study was commissioned by NCGA and funded by two seed companies, NC + Hybrids and Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

Weakened dollar may boost exports, Farm Bureau says

PARK RIDGE, IL. — The value of the U.S. dollar has dropped steadily in recent months kindling farm hopes that U.S. agricultural exports will again rebound. The dollar is at its lowest level in 10 months and down sharply from its peak in March.

"Our exchange rate is getting back into a more reasonable relationship with the world," said Ross Korves, economist for the American Farm Bureau Federation. "We're in a better position to sell our products on the world markets. At the same time, we don't expect our input costs to increase so our competitive position should definitely improve." U.S. agricultural exports in 1985 are expected to total $34 billion, down sharply from a high of $43 billion in 1981.

Korves said the dollar could continue its drop with an overall decline of as much as 20 percent from the peak reached in March, 1985. He cautioned, however, that a weakening of the dollar will not be the total solution to the nation's export problems. "The strong dollar wasn't all the problem, therefore a change in the value of the dollar will not prove to be the total solution," said Korves.

"If we don't see real economic growth in the middle income countries such as Mexico, South Korea and the middle eastern nations that have the greatest potential to increase food consumption, there will still be no place for our products to go. Other agricultural countries are producing for world markets and pricing their products to gain entry to those markets. That production will be there even with a weakened dollar," said the economist for the nation's largest farm organization.

"We should not expect to return to the boom export conditions which existed in mid and late 1970's. Yet, there is more room for optimism in the next four years compared with the past four years," Korves added.

"American agriculture needs expanding markets. These markets must come from outside the U.S. and outside the traditional trading partners of Western Europe, Japan and the USSR. These are still important markets, but not major growth markets," Korves added.

Three honored

WASHINGTON — Honors went to three individuals for their contributions to U.S. Department of Agriculture programs fostering international cooperation and efforts to combat hunger in the developing world.

In ceremonies at USDA, Joan Wallace, administrator of the department's Office of International Cooperation and Development, presented the awards to:

- John Moore, University of Maryland, for working to improve the management of development projects and promote scientific exchanges on agriculture between the United States and other nations;

- Eugene Nasir, professor emeritus at Gordon College, Rawalpindi, Pakistan, for 20 years of research on USDA projects in Pakistan and his outstanding contribution to the study of crops and plants in his country; and

- Larry Zuidema, Cornell University, for improving cooperation between USDA and the university community in training programs to strengthen agriculture in the developing world.

"We're grateful to the universities for the tremendous dedication they've shown to USDA's efforts in agricultural cooperation and development," said Wallace. "Each individual receiving an award today has played a key role in designing or carrying out these efforts."

Lancaster County seamstresses earn trip to State Fashion Revue

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER — A coveted trip to State 4-H Fashion Revue has become a reality for four girls from Lancaster County, half the total number of winners from the Capitol region. The winning tradition for Lancaster County has long been a reality in 4-H sewing, but three of the four are newcomers to the winner's circle.

Cindy Harnish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Harnish, R1, Willow Street, was among the top ten in the state last year, and relishes the opportunity to try again for the top prize for 4-H seamstresses.

For Cindy Trimble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Trimble, R1, Peach Bottom, it took ten years to earn an invitation to state Fashion Revue, and Cindy considers it a great way to finish out her 4-H career.

Alison Bradley, 16, is in her third year of sewing, and was "surprised" to be named one of the top eight winners at the regional event. Nevertheless, the prospect of attending the state show is exciting to Alison, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bradley, Sixth Avenue, Lititz.

Andrea Ebersole, 14, is in her first year of senior competition and was named an alternate at the county show. Because one of the eight gold ribbon winners couldn't attend, Andrea drew the lucky number and went on to be declared a gold winner at the regional contest. For Andrea, the selection was especially sweet, because last year she went to regional competition as an alternate junior winner and was named an alternate there. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ebersole, W. Newport Road, Lititz.

As each of the girls reflected their upcoming trip to 4-H state days held at Penn State in August, they recognized that the biggest challenge is going through county 4-H Fashion Revue, in a county which is known for its excellent seamstresses.

"Our county competition is definitely harder and we have a lot more girls in the fashion show," Cindy Harnish says.

CINDY HARNISH

Sixteen-year-old Cindy has been a winner in county fashion revue each of the four years she has been able to participate. Three of those four years she also won at regional, something that really puts the pressure on. However, Cindy notes that each year 4-H'ers must start again and go through the same process to be eligible for state competition.

In choosing her project, Cindy says, "I look at ready made clothing and catalogs to find ideas. This year I chose the fabric first."

Always searching for something different, Cindy and her mother visited the enormous "G Street" fabric store in Rockville, MD, and it was there that Cindy found the fuchsia and black plaid fabric that would become her winning blouse and skirt. "As soon as I saw it I knew it was what I wanted." This was the year that Cindy was required to sew with plaid as part of her project.

After consulting someone at the store, Cindy chose to design her own skirt. Cindy acknowledges, "I am the kind of person who jumps in head first. It took me two weeks to figure it out." Once she decided how she wanted the skirt to look, she says, "I just took two pieces of fabric and started pleating."

Even expert seamstresses have their problems and Cindy said the skirt was too full the first time she tried, so she decided to have pleats in the front and back and none on the sides. The skirt, not surprisingly, proved to be the hardest part of her project, and she says, "It was hard to get the waistband on."

After finishing with the skirt, Cindy decided to use a pattern for the blouse, changing just the sleeves.

Cindy says, "When I sew for 4-H, I sew from 8 in the morning until 8 at night." She said she is always very careful when sewing on a 4-H project. "Every time I cut a thread I make sure I don't have the fabric."

One advantage of sewing your own clothing, according to Cindy, is to save money. She adds, "You can make something and not see 10 other people wearing it. You can also make clothes you see in really

(Turn to Page B4)

Cindy Harnish likes to sew for herself between 4-H projects because it is cheaper and gives her the opportunity to select exactly what she wants. She said she gets her ideas from ready-made clothing and from catalogs.

Part of Cindy Trimble's daily routine includes helping with the milking on the family's Brown Swiss farm. Here she prepares the milking machine.

Looking through a pattern catalog, Andrea Ebersole gets ideas for appropriate garments for 4-H projects and for her other activities.

nice magazines, and that I couldn't buy myself."

Cindy has taken cake decorating, flowers, wildlife, pet care and basket weaving in 4-H, and is also a member of the Woolies 4-H Club, with two Suffolk breeding sheep. Her other projects are with the Penn Willow 4-H club, where she has served as vice president, news reporter, secretary and game leader. She has also worked with the 4-H clothing judging team.

As a teen leader project, Cindy started a sewing club, the Super Sewers, in the city of Lancaster, and taught five girls how to make a travel kit. She said she really liked the experience, but admitted to getting frustrated sometimes since some of the girls had never sewn.

A junior at Lancaster Mennonite High School, Cindy plays field hockey, sings in the chorus and is a member of the Future Agriculturists of America. She also plays softball in a summer league and is a member of the Byerland Mennonite Church.

CINDY TRIMBLE

Cindy Trimble, 17, is another veteran sewer, but never had the excitement of being a winner before this year. A member of the Solanco Community 4-H Club and the Kids and Kows Dairy Club, Cindy has taken sewing each of her ten years as a member.

She recalls that she joined 4-H because her dad was a leader and "encouraged it strongly."

When she is selecting a 4-H sewing project, Cindy says, "I look in the closet and see what I need to perk up my wardrobe. I like to make something different."

Last year she picked two patterns, and saved one for this year. She said she selected the Vogue pattern because "it was different from other dresses." The pleat in the back, and a turned up collar made it attractive to Cindy. She adds that she has the ability to match up colors and patterns and visualize how they will look on her.

Her challenge in 4-H was also to match a stripe and the fabric she chose had a "damask-like" stripe through it. She recalls, "I had to match the stripe all the way through."

She also did some very fine top stitching, and made covered buttons, matching the covering with the stripe in the dress. The fabric is bright red, chosen, Cindy says, because "it was bright and cheery and I wanted something with pizzazz."

When her name was announced at the county show, Cindy says, "It was really thrilling to win. It makes you feel good. I never expected to be called."

Cindy attended Leadership School at Penn State for two years and is looking forward to returning to campus for State Days in August.

She said she enjoys being in fashion revue because, "It gives you the opportunity to show off what you did, and it builds up your confidence." She said the project itself was not terribly difficult for her, though she did need to take the cuffs off and redo them, after sewing them on the wrong way. "The front pleat was the hardest because we couldn't figure out how to get it to hang right."

A graduate of Solanco High School and the Willow Street Vo-Tech, Cindy will be enrolling at Willow Street to study as a dental assistant. At school she was a wrestling scorekeeper and softball manager. A member of the Mechanic Grove Church of the Brethren, Cindy is also active in the Brown Swiss Association. She was a contestant in this year's Lancaster County dairy princess contest.

ALISON BRADLEY

Sixteen-year-old Alison Bradley joined 4-H because her mother was good friends with the leader of the Lititz-Rothsville 4-H Club, Sharon Schaich. She has enjoyed learning to sew, and this year determined that she wanted a Laura Ashley pattern. Unfortunately, once she chose the pattern, she learned that it was discontinued, which meant starting from scratch again. She finally selected another one, and it proved to be a winner.

Alison's dress featured a floral design, and just before cutting into it, they discovered that there was a stripe to the flowers, so the pattern had to be re-pinned. Alison said the lace on the collar was the hardest part of the dress, and when asked how long it took to sew the garment she replied, "Longer than I wanted it to."

A teen leader in the club, Alison helped plan and carry out the club's roundup. She has benefitted from 4-H by learning to sew but also by making new friends. Alison said, "I have met a whole new group of people."

It is an advantage to sew for yourself, because, according to Alison, "It is cheaper and you can make exactly what you want and choose the color. You don't have to just take what's made."

Counted crosstitch is another favorite hobby of Alison Bradley's, along with the sewing she has learned as a 4-H'er.

A junior at Warwick High School, Alison is a student athletic trainer, taping athletes for all sports. She is also a member of the band front, the chorus and show choir and served as class secretary for two years. A student of voice, it seems natural that she was selected as song leader for the 4-H club. Crocheting and crosstitch are two of her hobbies.

ANDREA EBERSOLE

Andrea Ebersole might be considered lucky. She has skill, of course, but she couldn't have received her gold ribbon at regional fashion revue if someone else had been able to attend. Andrea was an alternate at the county level, but was fortunate enough to go to the regional event and the judges were pleased with what they saw.

Her skill is evident when it is considered that last year she was a junior alternate at county, but again had the good fortune of going to regional, where she captured one of the alternate blue ribbons.

When her name was announced at Cumberland Valley High School giving her the chance to go to State Days, Andrea says, "I was shocked. I couldn't believe it. I thought I might have a chance as an alternate."

Andrea joined 4-H because of the influence of four older sisters and a brother who were all members. One sister went to the state contest, so Andrea knows a little of what to expect.

This year Andrea's project had to have a fly zipper, so she chose a skirt and made a blouse to complete the outfit. Andrea says of the fly zipper, "It took time but it wasn't that hard. We made sample zippers so we wouldn't mess up." She had to put the real zipper in twice because the stitching on the machine wasn't right. Using transparent tape helped serve as a guide. She said she also learned how to set in sleeves.

She said she wanted an outfit that she could wear to church and other occasions, and easily found the skirt material, then looked for a blouse. She wanted to make it with lace, but couldn't find a pattern with lace, so she settled for dotted swiss fabric.

Andrea recalls starting to sew "pretty young," perhaps with the influence of her mother who sewed for everyone in the family and who is now busily making bridesmaids dresses for an upcoming family wedding.

She enjoys sewing other clothing for herself, adding, "It is not as expensive and you get to fit it just as you want it to. You also get the color you want."

Her 4-H experience has been especially beneficial, Andrea feels, because, "I have trouble getting up in front of groups, and now I don't get quite as nervous. I've also gotten to know some girls who will be going to states, and I think I'll have fun."

Andrea recognizes the advantages of going through fashion revue in Lancaster County. "It is almost harder to win at Lancaster County's than at regional. If you win here you feel pretty good about yourself." Another advantage of participating in fashion revue is the opportunity to see what others have made. "It gives you ideas," Andrea says.

A ninth grader at Manheim Central, Andrea plays the trumpet in the band. She is also looking forward to joining the youth group at the White Oak Church of the Brethren.

Andrea said her 4-H sewing experience is something she'll use long after she's out of 4-H. And it has already helped her in home economics at school where she had to make a skirt this year. "It was pretty easy—I didn't have to keep asking the teacher. I was really glad for my 4-H experience."

Andrea has also taken macrame, cake decorating and quilting as 4-H projects.

When these four girls participate in the state fashion revue, it will be with the best 4-H seamstresses from around the Commonwealth. Ten finalists will be selected, and then, with a score from a white form detailing all their activities, one will be selected to go to national 4-H Club Congress.

However the local seamstresses fare, they will have the satisfaction of having beautiful garments to add to their wardrobes, and a skill which will serve them a lifetime.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Our vacation in Black Moshannon State Park was restful and yet a bit hectic. We drove to different state parks to fish, pulling our trailer and small aluminum boat. At Prince Gallitzin we caught twenty pan fish in an early morning fog, but we put some back because they were too little. We both cleaned the fish after eating outside beside a fire that Allen started for hot dogs. Some lakes were clogged with water lilies and folks were casting for bass there.

One day Allen and I spent a few hours hiking in the morning. There were quite a few hunting cabins among the fern covered woodlands. A big red lily was blooming here and there and also some white straw-like flowers. In the afternoons I went swimming in the nearby lake.

When a notice was put on the bulletin board telling of a supervised hike on Sleepy Hollow Trail, I decided to go, but my husband opted for a nap. I had an awful time finding the location to start the walk. After a lot of inquiring and fast walking, I arrived only to discover that I was the lone participant. So the three park service officers and I had a nice leisurely and educational walk. I learned the names of some new flowers and we saw a young groundhog climb a tall tree. People complained that nothing was planned and then did not attend when something was arranged.

One evening we drove toward Phillipsburg as I wanted to stop at the Butler Cemetery. There were headstones with "Fike" names on them—1895 and 1900. Nearby was a milestone "Phila.-Erie Turnpike 1821." As I returned to the car, I heard a crashing noise in the brush. I told my husband that there must be several deer in the woods. But, then everything was quiet and so I clapped my hands. A big black bear stood up about twenty feet away. "Let's walk back to the car," I said. As we stood by the open doors, I grabbed my camera and took his picture as he crossed the road.

Grill flavor into favorite meats

Sultry summer days are the perfect time to enjoy a cookout. It's just too hot to fire up the oven, and cooking outdoors offers an opportunity to catch any breezes that waft by.

While grilled beef is a favorite, pork, chicken and lamb taste great over the open fire as well. You can try kabobs, steaks, chops and ribs — whatever suits your fancy — and be assured that the unique flavor will please your taste buds.

Recipes

PICNICKERS' PIZZA PIE

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 8-ounce can refrigerated crescent rolls
- 1 8-ounce can pizza sauce
- 1 4-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces, drained
- ½ cup pitted ripe olives, sliced
- 10 canned mild cherry peppers, cut in wedges
- 1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1 teaspoon leaf oregano

Brown ground beef and onion in frying-pan on grill; remove to absorbent paper and season with salt. Pour off drippings, leaving pan "greased." Separate triangles of crescent roll dough, place in pan to form circle and press edges together to form crust with rim. Spread half of pizza sauce over dough. Place ground beef over dough. Top with mushrooms, olives and cherry pepper wedges. Pour remaining sauce over meat and vegetables; sprinkle with shredded cheese and leaf oregano. Cover pan securely with aluminum foil, cook on grill at moderate temperature 20 to 30 minutes or until dough is lightly browned. Makes 4 servings.

- #### GOLDEN GLAZED CHICKEN
- 2 fryers, halved or quartered
 - 1 6-ounce can orange juice concentrate
 - 1 6-ounce can lemonade concentrate
 - ½ cup soy sauce
 - 1 cup honey
 - 1 teaspoon lemon and pepper seasoning

Combine all ingredients except chicken. Place chicken in a shallow baking dish, pour marinade sauce over chicken. Refrigerate about 6 hours, basting occasionally. Place chicken skin side up on grill set 6 to 8 inches from heat. Brush chicken with sauce. Cook until tender, turning and basting. Allow 1 to 1¼ hours cooking time. Makes 8 servings.

Quick Pineapple Cheese Pie

- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened to room temperature
 - ¼ cup sugar
 - 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
 - 1½ cups drained crushed pineapple (1 pound can)
 - 1 9-inch graham cracker crust or your favorite crust
- Whip softened cream cheese and sugar together well. Fold in the whipped cream then the well-drained crushed pineapple. Spoon into the pie shell. Chill thoroughly - about 2 hours - until filling is set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

NUMBER ONE WORLDWIDE

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Like anything else that gets used every day, we pay very little attention to a bale of hay or straw. Cows munch through mountains of them in a year's time, neighbors occasionally stop by to buy one for their dog's box or to mulch a strawberry patch, and most of the summer is spent in pursuit of more of them.

By itself, a bale doesn't amount to too much - or go very far in feeding. But piled in stacks, layers high, they're precious cache for the winter, cozy hide-a-ways for nests of kittens, building material for forts, and unending exercise for all of us who lug them around.

Somewhere in the accumulating stores are a cluster of bales just patiently waiting to snag me some unsuspecting day.

They're "Crackerjack" bales. You all know about "Crackerjacks" That's the caramel-coated popcorn that comes in little boxes, complete with peanuts and the "surprise in every box." (I think they still put a surprise in every box.)

I cut my consumer teeth on crackerjacks - it was a favorite church picnic purchase. And among my precious possessions were various prizes from the boxes.

I'm still finding surprises in packages - in the "Crackerjack" bales.

Just the other day I split the strings on a hay bale and out tumbled a flattened stack of cardboard. This is one of the less unusual treats.

The farmer has always practiced hayfield anti-littering. When he opens a new pack of baling twine, he simply throws the wrappings in the windrow to bale up with the harvest. That keeps the trash from blowing around and messing up the neighborhood.

Occasionally part of a magazine, or newspaper, or advertising flyer turns up in a hunk of hay. Parts of feed bags and bits of plastic garbage bag are pretty common, too.

Once in a while, a jagged-edged, flattened soft drink can is the surprise in the bale. That never fails to stir a fleeting wish that I could shove the residue into the fan blades or carburetor of the car driven by the passing motorist who tossed it into the field in the first place.

Every now and then, a big hunk of tree limb finds its way through the baler's mechanism and is left lying, untouched, in an otherwise relatively bare feed alley.

"Roughage," the farmer calls it. Such wooden extras prove to be better fuel for the woodstove kindling pile than the cows' inner milk processing plants.

Even flattened, dried-up pieces of some poor luckless groundhog who met his fate before the mower and baler have been known to occasionally appear. Balers are not yet computerized to accept hay and straw while spitting out such harvest unwanted.

All that I can handle. But the load of straw that recently came in polluted with snakes, and is stacked somewhere, just waiting for me, will haunt me for the next many months.

I wasn't actually helping unload this batch, so this is second-hand observation. But I understand there are - or at least it seemed - more than just a few bales with snake residue. The elder offspring who did unload these recounted in horror how she saw the tail end of a reptile protruding from a bale, gingerly poked it, and liked to have died when the tail began furiously wriggling.

And somewhere in hundreds of bales, they wait. Maybe for me.

If I had my druthers, I'd druther get my surprises from Crackerjacks.

4-H'ers focus on citizenship

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The nation's capital will become the classroom for more than 4,000 teenage 4-H'ers from different states during a week-long citizenship and leadership training held at the National 4-H Center.

The Citizenship-Washington Focus program for teens began on June 2 and will continue each week through Aug. 10.

Participants will visit Capitol Hill for a close-up view of the political process; meet with their congressional representatives and senators for a discussion of legislative issues; visit historical and cultural sites within the metropolitan Washington, D.C. area, and interact with other 4-H members from across the country to exchange ideas and learn different customs and interests.

Farmers help keep America strong

America's farmers are among the great "wonders of the modern world." They not only feed us, but are instrumental in keeping America strong.

Each farm worker in the U.S. provides enough food to supply himself and more than 70 other Americans. They not only feed America, but also produce enough food for millions of people overseas.

The amazing productivity of the American farmer is a real bargain for U.S. consumers. The efficiency of American farmers enables families to eat well for a smaller share of their take-home pay than people in most nations. And, the money Americans have left over after paying for their food has been instrumental in the growth of our economy. The production of automobiles, televisions, recreational equipment, all the consumer goods which Americans buy, are purchased after we pay for essentials such as food.

The American family farmer is a living example of the free enterprise system in action. The productivity of American farmers brings us a truly great bounty of food. You realize just how important farmers are when you ask the simple question, "Where's my next meal coming from?" The American farm, of course!

So when you sit down to eat tonight, pause just a moment and remember America's farmers and the abundant food supply they provide.

Did you know?

To prevent getting separated during a flood, some ants on the North American prairie cling together, forming a big ball, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine. The ball becomes a floating raft that constantly tumbles, giving each ant a turn to breathe. Amazingly, few ants drown.

Despite the growing popularity of recycling in many countries, International Wildlife magazine reports that only about one-fourth of all paper, aluminum, iron and steel is recycled. A report from Worldwatch Institute says that in 1981 people in the United States threw away more aluminum in the form of beverage containers than all the aluminum produced in Africa.

Solve this baseball brainbuster!

WHO'S WHO ON THE BASEBALL TEAM

Listed below are some comments on the nine players as a baseball player. With a little study and reasoning, you should be able to figure out what positions each holds on the team.

1. Joe and the 3rd baseman live in the same building.
2. Bob, Jim, Frank and the catcher were beaten at golf by the second baseman.
3. Ed was a very close friend of the catcher.
4. The centerfielder was taller than the rightfielder.
5. The shortstop, the 3rd baseman, and Frank each like to go to the races.
6. Bill's sister was engaged to the 2nd baseman.
7. The pitcher's wife was the 3rd baseman's sister.
8. Bob and Harry each won $5.00 from the pitcher at poker.
9. The catcher and 3rd baseman each had two children.
10. Jim decided to get a divorce.
11. All the battery and infield, excepting Harry, Joe, and Ed, were shorter than Jim.
12. Bill and the outfielders liked to play gin rummy together.
13. Jack was taller than Frank. Tom was shorter than Frank. Each of them weighed more than the 1st baseman.
14. One of the outfielders was either Tom or Ed.
15. Bill, Bob, and Jack, the centerfielder, and the rightfielder were bachelors. The others were married.
16. Bob, Ed, and the shortstop were teetotalers.

Lebanon 4-H livestock judges post wins in state contest

LEBANON — Lebanon County's 4-H Livestock Judging Team members recently posted many victories in a statewide junior livestock judging contest held at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds. These winnings included high team in beef judging and high individual in beef.

The judging contest, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Yorkshire and Duroc Swine Associations and organized by Lebanon County agricultural Extension agent, Ken Winebark, boasted nearly 100 4-H and FFA contestants from twelve counties.

Lebanon's 4-H'ers had their finest showing in the beef competition, winning both high individual and high team honors. Roxanne Kirst, Fredericksburg; placed first in the beef division with a perfect score. Team mates Shelby Heagy, Lebanon; and Mike Kleinfelter, Myerstown; placed 7th and 9th, respectively; in overall beef judging.

Lebanon County's team was also named number one in beef. This team consisted of Jeff Bomgardner, Annville; Shelby Heagy, Lebanon; Jason Krall, Lebanon; and Brian Kreider, Lebanon.

In swine judging the same team placed third overall. Lebanon 4-H'ers also took four of the top ten awards in the swine division: Jeff Bomgardner, Annville; Jason Krall, Lebanon; Brian Kreider, Lebanon; and Donald Kleinfelter, Myerstown; placed third, sixth, seventh, and ninth, respectively.

Two of Lebanon's livestock judges ranked in the top 10 individuals in sheep judging. These individuals were Roxanne Kirst, Fredericksburg; and Brian Meyer, Annville; placing third and seventh overall.

In the overall contest competition (beef, sheep and swine) two Lebanon Countians rose to the top ten rank. They were Jeff Bomgardner, Annville; and Shelby Heagy, Lebanon; placing sixth and ninth, respectively.

Extension agent Ken Winebark said that he was "very pleased with the event. I am very happy with the response and especially pleased with the way our Lebanon County 4-H'ers performed." He noted that this is the first time Lebanon County has hosted a statewide 4-H livestock judging contest.

Other 4-H members judging were: Daryl and Greg Bomgardner, Annville; Melanie Bow, Annville; Heather Emerich, Annville; Leigh Hitz, Annville; Chris Kirst, Fredericksburg; Amy, Kelly and Michelle Weaber, Lebanon.

The livestock judging team is coached by livestock leader Mike States and Ken Winebark, and is open to all individuals interested in learning to judge livestock.

Dutch students visit Lancaster County

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

LANCASTER — Thirty-five agricultural students from the Praktijkschool Horst in The Netherlands visited Lancaster County this week as part of a 15-day study tour throughout Canada and northeastern United States.

Henk von Dam, teacher at the school and trip organizer, said that the trip was designed to help the students see farms and learn practical applications of farming methods.

Explaining that the school is designed to offer a practical education in agriculture, von Dam said that 80 to 90 percent of the 400 students who attend the school throughout the year have a farming background. "Most will go back to the farm, and some will try to get a job in an agricultural business," he said.

As in this country, it is very difficult to buy a farm in The Netherlands, and for most young people the only possible way is to take over the parents' farm.

While dairying is the primary agricultural enterprise, von Dam said that the school, located in the south of the country, gets as many students for swine and horses as for dairy. Poultry students are the fewest in number, but that industry is becoming more important.

Von Dam said that the average farm in The Netherlands has about 40 milking cows and is 20 hectares in size. They have a strict quota system for milk, and farmers are paid for milk on the basis of fat and protein. Average production for that country is 5,600 kilograms.

For the students, there were not a lot of new ideas to be learned for the poultry and swine operations they visited on this continent, because their own industry is relatively new and very modern. In dairying, however, von Dam said, "The feeding is very different. We feed mostly pasture and some grass and corn silage. We learned about the complete feed used here." Silage, he noted, is stored in bunkers, under plastic, not in silos which are so common in this country.

Dairy cattle in The Netherlands are mostly Friesian, with red and white more common in the south, where they remain dual purpose animals.

Promotion is important in the dairy industry, with a special commission set up to promote milk and cheese. He said the average person drinks 150 liters of milk per year.

A part of the European Economic Community, The Netherlands exports about 90 percent of their agricultural products. Von Dam said, "Farmers are not always happy about the EEG but they know what prices they will get." He added that there once was a lot of discussion about the Community, but that has slowed considerably.

The Praktijkschool Horst has grown to include 30 acres since its establishment in 1953, and offers both theoretical and practical education. The school has facilities for its 200 breeding sows, 60 fattening pigs, 10,000 laying hens, 3,000 pullets, 6,000 broilers and 60 cows and 40 calves. They also use the facilities of about 68 guest farms in the immediate area. The philosophy of the school is that each person must find his own area of specialization. In addition to courses which last for one year, there are others which are offered for shorter periods of time.

According to von Dam, up to 50 percent of students enrolled in agriculture at universities may be women. However the two women in the group of 35 more accurately reflects the population of the students at the practical schools, since "most farmers will be men."

In addition to visiting poultry, swine and dairy operations, the group visited research centers as they traveled in the northeast. In Lancaster County, they visited the Triple G Farms dairy after traveling through the local countryside.

They stayed primarily in campgrounds, and helped the budget by doing some of their own cooking.

Von Dam said that for the most part, the young students, who ranged in age from 18-23, were not surprised by what they observed in the United States. He said the excursion offered was an integral part of the program at the school.

Zoann Parker, Lancaster County 4-H agent, welcomes Henk von Dam, agricultural teacher from The Netherlands who is traveling in Northeastern United States with 35 of his students. They visited Lancaster County as part of a 15-day study tour.

4-H seamstressess advance to state competition

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

MECHANICSBURG — It was the culmination of a summer of hard work for 83 4-H seamstresses of the capital section of the southeast extension region as they met at the Cumberland Valley High School for fashion revue.

They were the finest 4-H sewers from the seven counties in the section, and they showed off their abilities to the judges and their fellow 4-H'ers in a day of "Fashion Pursuit."

Only a small percentage of the girls got ribbons, but they were all winners in their own counties, and their talents were evident in the fashionable, up-to-the-minute styles.

Eight 4-H'ers from the 48 senior participants were selected to represent the section at State 4-H Days in August at Penn State. In a winning tradition, four were selected from Lancaster County. There were: Alison Bradley, Lititz; Andrea Eversole, Lititz; Cindy Harnish, Willow Street; and Cindy Trimble, Peach Bottom. Also selected were: Jacki King, York Springs, Adams County; Karen Eckerd, Mechanicsburg, Cumberland County; Tammy Orner, Mechanicsburg, Cumberland County; and Christine McDonald, Shippensburg, Franklin County.

Seniors who received blue ribbons were: Adams County- Noel King, Lela Mummert, and Tina Renoll; Cumberland County- Dana Heine and Vicki Holtry; Franklin County- Marina Keefer; Lancaster County- Lisa Heisey, Alissa Hooper and Tiffany Rohrer; and Lebanon County- Sylvia Royer.

There were five gold winners in the junior division of regional fashion revue. Seated are Linda Heisey, Lititz, Lancaster County; Heather Reinhard, Millersburg, Dauphin County. Standing are Amy Fyock, Lititz, Lancaster County; Jenny Zemba, Palmyra, Lebanon County; and Heather Miller, Lititz, Lancaster County.

In the junior division, Lancaster County led the way with three of the five gold ribbons awarded. Winners from Lancaster were: Amy Fyock, Linda Heisey, and Heather Miller. Other gold winners were Heather Reinhard, Dauphin County and Jennie Zemba, Lebanon County.

Blue ribbon winners in the junior division were: Renee Mickey, Adams County; Christine Bert, Franklin County; Lori Breckbill, Lancaster County; Beth Brandt, Lebanon County; and Jenny Gladfelter, York County.

Bucks County 4-H'ers model sewing projects

Eight Bucks County 4-H'ers represented the county in the Southeastern Region 4-H Fashion Revue, held recently at Cumberland Valley High School.

Those taking part in the Regional Review are: Dawn Godshall, 12, Warrington; Beatrix Hestand, 11, Sellersville; Sara Sempowski, 13, Kintnersville; Darlene Buckman, 15, Perkasie; Erica Glaab, 15, New Hope; Amelia Hestand, 14, Sellersville; Chris Rosanelli, 16, Dublin; and Betsy Walton, 14, Doylestown.

The 4-H'ers made the outfits they modeled as part of their 4-H clothing projects. Along with increasing their skills in clothing construction, they learned about wardrobe selection, color coordination, the importance of good posture, and other aspects of good grooming.

County 4-H'ers will compete with those selected from other counties in the Southeastern Region. The 10 top regional winners will be awarded gold ribbons. Each county contestant will receive a certificate of participation and a medal of honor.

The 10 Gold Ribbon winners will vie with the top winners of other Regions for state honors, at the State Fashion Revue, held in August on Penn State's University Park Campus during State 4-H Achievement Days, judges will select an Honors Group of 10 finalists. These 10 4-H'ers will compete for the top state award, part of which is an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Dec. 1 through 5.

Buying Children's Clothing

You can often tell what kind of morning I am experiencing by the amount of clothing that has been taken from the closet, tried on and left rejected on the bed! The other morning, I was completely dressed and in the car when I decided that I just didn't feel comfortable with what I had on. I dashed back into the house for another try at wardrobe selection.

While I may be an extreme example, clothing really does affect us and the way we feel. Different items of clothing are chosen for comfort, coolness, or a certain look. Some items in my wardrobe make me feel more cheerful or self-confident. We probably all have favorite items that we wear often for one reason or another.

A challenge awaits every shopper who is being beckoned by the advertisements to do "back to school" clothing shopping. On a practical side, you may concentrate on matters such as fit, quality, price, and care requirements. These are all very important. But clothing choices will also play a part in a school child's self-esteem. I remember each fall buying a new pair of school shoes. As I walked out our dusty farm lane, the new shoes supplied a fresh sense of confidence in starting a new school year.

Clothing also provides school age children with a sense of ownership. Choosing, taking care of, and combining garments to make outfits allows a child to experience the pleasures and the responsibilities of ownership. School-age children have very definite opinions about the clothing they like. I remember being very anxious to make my own clothing choices. Helping to select clothing also assists in developing skills in decision-making and shopping.

I have fond memories of a day of school shopping with my mother. Usually each of us got a turn to go shopping and often had lunch out on shopping day. Here are a few tips to make your shopping trip more fun for everyone:

- Measure children before shopping. That way you will know what size is likely to fit best.
- Make a list together of clothing needed for school, play, and special occasions. Check last year's wardrobe for useable items.
- Take your list along so you can target your efforts.

• Let your child express opinions about colors and styles; children are alert to what other children are wearing, and are more apt to enjoy clothing that looks like that of their friends.

• Select a few items, any of which would fit into the child's wardrobe; then let the child select from these to practice decision-making skills. Be generous with praise when the child selects clothing. This reinforces positive feelings in making choices.

• When you get home, review the clothing you bought and show the child how nice it looks with other clothing. Discuss which outfits are for school and for play.

I remember that our school shopping trip was not over when we returned home. Last year's wardrobe items that still fit were brought out of the closet and the new items were arranged to show the many mix and match possibilities. The shopping trip was complete after my father had a chance to see the new purchases and express his approval.

Clothing is important to each one of us. Planning and selecting a satisfactory wardrobe does not have to involve a lot of new purchases. A few good purchases will be more economical and easier to care for. Besides, if there are too many items to choose from, there are more decisions to make in the morning before the school bus arrives. It's good that I don't have to meet a school bus any longer. I'd probably miss it because I was back inside changing my wardrobe!

Freeze your own mixed vegetables

YORK — Packaged mixed frozen vegetables in supermarkets come in a variety of combinations, and those with broccoli and cauliflower generally command the highest price.

These vegetable combinations are not only pleasing to the eye but appeal to the tastes of many families. So, it's not surprising that many home freeze owners want to freeze their own vegetable combinations.

It's easy to do. The essential ingredient for individually quick freezing vegetables at home, sometimes called tray freezing, is patience.

Following are some general directions:

• Decide on the mix. Most commercially frozen products combine 3 to 4 different vegetables.

• Prepare vegetables for freezing.

• Cut, slice or dice vegetables into appropriate sized pieces.

• Blanch, chill and drain.

• Spread vegetables on a tray making sure pieces do not touch one another.

• Place tray in rapid freeze section of the freezer. If pieces are small, vegetables will freeze in 1 to 2 hours.

• Package and label mixed vegetables. Store at 0 degrees or lower in home freezer.

This method is also excellent for freezing onion and pepper discs, rings or strips. Store in large freezer bags or other resealable containers. Remove only the number of items you need for casseroles and other dishes. Reseal bags and return to the freezer immediately.

Know your beef basics when shopping and cooking

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — Have you ever been overwhelmed by indecision at the supermarket meat counter? Do all those neatly labeled packages of meat lined up for your inspection make you wonder if you're really a vegetarian at heart?

The meat counter doesn't have to be the end of you — or your budget. When armed with knowledge of the different cuts of meat and methods for preparing them, you can conquer your fears of the meat counter and bring home a wide variety of meats to suit your needs and budget.

Under the law, George explained, all meat must pass inspection for wholesomeness. This guarantees the consumer that all meat at the counter is from healthy animals that were slaughtered under sanitary conditions and is suitable for consumption.

While this is reassuring, you probably would like to get the best quality meat for your money. Quality, in meat, refers to palatability of the lean, including tenderness, juiciness and flavor, George defined.

When meats are graded, it's easier for the consumer to make an educated decision. USDA grading is an option open to packers, but is not required by law. Firms opting to have their meat graded pay trained specialists employed by USDA to evaluate their meat.

The top three quality grades for beef are prime, choice and good, with choice being the most abundant grade available, George explained. These grades are usually available in retail stores and come from young, well-fed animals usually less than two years old.

The quality grade takes into account marbling, the flecks of white fat throughout the lean; texture, the firmness of the muscle fibers; and color.

Prime beef contains the most marbling and is generally sold in fine restaurants, while choice grade contains sufficient marbling for good taste, but is less expensive than prime. Beef with a good grade is still lower priced and has less marbling than choice. It is good eating and just as nutritious as other grades but is less tender, George noted.

Once you know the grade, you'll want to take a closer look at the individual piece of meat you are considering. In beef, the color of the lean should be bright to deep red and should have small flecks of fat or marbling throughout. The fat covering should be 1/2 to one inch thick and should be chalky white in color, George said.

"The less tender cuts of beef are in the areas that contain more muscles," George explained. The chuck and the round are less tender than the rib and the loin, he continued.

The filet or tenderloin steak is one of the tenderest cuts of beef with just one muscle present. This cut is one of the most expensive because it is of limited quantity in the animal, he noted.

If you're still confused about which cut to buy, you can rely on the label on the meat. Many retail stores have adopted a meat labeling program for all red meats that will tell you the kind of meat — beef, pork, lamb or veal, the wholesale cut — chuck, rib, loin or round, and the retail cut — such as blade roast, round steak or short ribs.

When purchasing ground beef, you usually have three varieties to select from, Lancaster Extension home economist Doris Thomas explained. Hamburger is ground beef that contains not less than 70 percent lean; ground chuck has not less than 75 percent lean and ground round has not less than 85 percent lean.

Once you've purchased a good cut of beef, you'll want to prepare it properly to get the tenderest, most flavorful results. You have two basic cooking methods to choose from, dry and moist heat. Dry heat is recommended for tender cuts from the rib and loin, Thomas explained, and moist heat is best for less tender cuts from the chuck and round.

There are four basic types of dry heat cooking methods — roasting, panbroiling, broiling and pan-frying.

To roast meat, place the meat, and seasonings if desired, fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Do not cover the pan to roast.

When broiling beef, place the meat on broiler pan rack two to five inches from the heat. Thomas reminded workshop participants that when broiling in an electric range, it is important to keep the oven door open.

For panbroiling, put meat into preheated frying pan without oil or water. Do not cover.

To panfry beef, place meat in a small amount of heated oil, but do not cover. Brown the meat at a moderate temperature.

There are two options for preparing less tender cuts using moist heat — braising and cooking in liquid.

To braise beef, brown the meat in a small amount of oil, drain off the drippings, season and add a small amount of liquid. Cover and cook at a low temperature on top of the range or in oven until tender.

When cooking with liquid, coat the beef with seasoned flour if desired and brown on both sides in oil. Cover the beef with liquid and simmer on top of range or in oven until tender.

Now that you know how to select and prepare beef, the meat counter need no longer discourage you.

Below are a few sauce recipes from the California Beef Council. These sauces will accent the robust flavor of tender cuts of beef and can be served with grilled or broiled porterhouse steaks, chuck eye steaks, tenderloin steaks or top loin steaks.

Cold Salads For Hot Summer Days

When the weather's just too hot to cook, do yourself a favor: learn to use your microwave for more of your cooking chores. Cooking meats and vegetables for salads in your microwave is quick and your kitchen stays cool. Even treats like a cake or brownies can be made without heating up that furnace of an oven!

Here's a few shortcuts for fixing cold summer salads. Use these techniques for your own favorite salads or try the two recipes here. The chicken fruit salad has an unusual flavor, and was a favorite at a recent picnic!

Hardcooked Eggs

You can't hardboil eggs in their shells in your microwave unless you have a steamer or special microwave egg cooker. However, eggs can be hard cooked in a microwave when you want them to chop for a salad. Break eggs into custard cups, or use a microwave muffin pan (without holes in the bottom). Pierce the yolks with a knife to prevent bursting.

Cover with plastic wrap and cook on high for 30-45 seconds per egg. If your oven has medium power, use this instead, cooking them for one-two minutes each on medium (50,5). The lower power level cooks them a little more evenly without risking rubbery (overcooked) white areas.

Microwaving Pasta

Large amounts of pasta are best,

cooked on your range. A microwave just takes too long to heat quantities of water greater than five-six cups. You can use your microwave for pasta in smaller quantities though.

Start with hot tap water, and reduce the amount of water used. I use one cup pasta to two cups water, and about a half teaspoon salt. Combine pasta, salt, and water in a large casserole. Cover and cook on high until it boils (5-6 minutes). Stir, then reduce power to low (30,3 defrost). Cook on low for about as long as the directions call for on the box, until the pasta is tender. Drain and rinse with cold water immediately to prevent stickiness.

The microwave doesn't shorten the cooking time, because it takes time for the dehydrated pasta to reabsorb water to get tender. However, your microwave uses less energy than a range burner on high power.

Microwaving Poultry Parts

Chicken or turkey pieces cooked in your microwave will be very tender and juicy (unless you overcook them!) Skin pieces if desired to reduce fats. Cook, covered, on medium high (70,7) for 10 minutes per pound. Turn meat over halfway through the cooking time—see the cooking steps in the chicken salad recipe below. Let stand, covered, five minutes.

Tuna Pasta Salad

1 cup uncooked elbow macaroni
2 cups hot water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 egg
2 sliced green onions
1 stalk celery thinly sliced
2 small carrots thinly sliced
1 6 1/2-ounce can chunk tuna
1/3 cup mayonnaise
3 tablespoons yogurt
2 teaspoons spicy brown mustard
1. Stir hot water, salt and macaroni together in a two-quart casserole. Cover and cook on high for 5-6 minutes until boiling.

2. Stir. Reduce power and cook on low (defrost, 30,3) for 8-9 minutes more, until the macaroni is tender. Immediately rinse with cold water to stop the cooking and keep the macaroni from getting sticky. Set aside.

3. Break the egg into a small custard cup. Pierce the yolk with the tip of a knife and cover with plastic wrap or a small plate. Cook on medium (50,5) for 1 1/2 to 2 minutes until barely hard cooked. Let stand to finish cooking and cool slightly. Chop when cool enough to handle.

4. In a serving or mixing bowl, combine pasta, chopped egg, sliced vegetables and tuna and mix gently. Stir mayonnaise, yogurt and mustard together in a small bowl until smoothly mixed. Pour over salad and mix. Chill until serving time. Garnish with tomato wedges, lettuce or parsley. Serves 4-6.

Chicken Fruit Salad

3 whole chicken breasts (2 pounds)
1 1/2 cups seedless green grapes
1 15-ounce can pineapple chunks
2 red apples
1/4 cup toasted slivered almonds
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 tablespoons pineapple juice

1. Cut chicken breasts in half and remove skin if desired. Place upside down in a flat dish putting thicker parts of the meat on the outside of the container. Cover with a lid or plastic wrap. Cook on medium high (70,7) for 10 minutes.

2. Turn meat over, putting larger or least cooked pieces on the outside and in the corners of the container. Recover and cook on medium high (70,7) for 10 minutes. Let stand for 5 minutes, then remove meat from pan to cool. Remove meat from bones and cut into chunks.

3. Drain pineapple chunks, reserving juice in a bowl. Cut apples into quarters, remove seeds. Cut quarters into bite sized pieces. Soak apple pieces in pineapple juice for a few minutes to prevent browning. Mix chicken chunks, fruit and almonds in a mixing or serving bowl.

4. In a small bowl blend mayonnaise, soy sauce and 2 tablespoons pineapple juice until smooth. Pour over salad, mix gently, chill for several hours before serving for flavors to blend. Serves 6.

Note: The cooking times above are for microwaves with 600-700 watts of cooking power. For 500-600 W, add 10 seconds to each minute; for 400-500 W, add 20 seconds to each minute.

"Country Picnic Day" set at Farm Museum

LANCASTER — The Landis Valley Associates and the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission will co-host "Country Picnic Day" at the Pennsylvania Farm Museum on Sunday, Aug. 4 from noon to 5 p.m.

Designed in the tradition of a typical Sunday afternoon community picnic of the turn of the century, "Country Picnic Day" has been established as a fund-raising event for the benefit of the Landis Valley Associates of the Pennsylvania Farm Museum while simultaneously providing an educational and recreational service to both the Lancaster County community and outside visitors to the area.

Distinctly different from Craft Days and Harvest Days, Country Picnic Day will not emphasize demonstrations of crafts or harvest-time activities but rather provide an event which promotes food, fun and entertainment within a traditional context.

Visitors may bring their own picnic lunches or buy picnic food on the museum grounds. The Landis Valley House Hotel will offer typical picnic fare such as corn on the cob, hot dogs, fried chicken, potato salad, bologna, cheese, fruit, pretzels, chips, desserts and drinks. Or in the tradition of a true Sunday afternoon picnic, visitors may bid on a specially prepared picnic lunch for two donated by leading Lancaster County eating establishments. The special lunches will be on exhibit in the Landis Valley House Hotel from noon until the time of the auction at 1 p.m.

Picnic tables will be set up; however, visitors may bring lawn chairs and blankets if they choose. New in the food line this year will be a demonstration of making turtle soup with samples to go round.

Other food-related activities include a pie-eating contest, a decorated cake contest and auction, and cake walks.

A decorated cake contest will take place in the Landis Valley House Hotel.

Not all of the games and contests include food, however. Regularly scheduled heats of wheelbarrow races, three-legged races, foot races, and peanut/penny scrambles will be held in the "millstone grove." Next to the Visitor Center activities such as badminton, horseshoes, quoits and croquet will be coordinated. It will be necessary to sign up for the races but not for the latter games.

For the "farmer at heart," a hay-bale-throwing contest will be held throughout the afternoon in the Settler's Farm pasture; while "scholarly" children and adults will enjoy the old-fashioned spelling bees held on the Hotel porch. Adults will compete at 2:30 and children at 3:30.

Prizes, furnished by the Landis Valley Associates, will be awarded for the games and contests.

New entertainment this year will feature the "Wheelman," a group of high-wheeled cyclists who will demonstrate "wheelmanship" all afternoon and give formation presentations at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Entertainment under the tent in the "walnut grove" will feature the Bainbridge Band which will present a concert from 2 to 4 p.m. Apple bobbing and horse-drawn wagon rides will be held throughout the afternoon while a clown will add a festive touch as he circulates around the Museum grounds dispensing balloons.

Adjacent to the "grove" in the Settler's Farm pasture, there will be a greased pig chase demonstration at 2:45 p.m.

Throughout the afternoon the new Museum orientation slide show, "A Magnificent Dream" will be shown in the auditorium of the Visitor Center.

New fund-raising events will be added this year with the auctioning at 1:30 p.m. from the Hotel porch of a half-dozen "bed and breakfast" accommodations for two at choice Lancaster County inns. At the same time the use of the Museum Gallery and its facilities for a gala will be auctioned, followed at 2 p.m. with the auctioning of select hand-crafted traditional items designed and executed by Museum craftspeople and volunteers.

Finally a major feature of the fund-raising event, a quilt raffle, will take place at 4 p.m. on the porch of the Landis Valley House Hotel. Quilted exclusively for "Country Picnic Day" by the Black Rock Retreat Auxiliary, the quilt exhibits a design called "Eight Point Star" done in shades of blue and red on a white background. Raffle tickets will be sold on the Museum grounds until the time of the drawing.

If all of these activities don't fill up the afternoon for visitors, the Farm Museum's exhibit buildings will be open for tours also. Admission to "Country Picnic Day" is $4 for adults; $3 for senior citizens; $2 for youth (6-17); and children 5 and under free. The price of admission includes all activities except food and the quilt raffle. The event will be held rain or shine. The Pennsylvania Farm Museum is located four miles north of Lancaster on route 272.

How To Choose A Good Cantalope

When choosing cantalopes, most people poke, squeeze, and shake to determine which melons are the ripe ones. The final result of this process can be a sweet, juicy melon or a rough, sour fruit. There is no absolute formula for choosing a good melon.

I want to share the following helpful hints which will increase your chances of success in buying good cantaloupes.

Cantaloupes have three major signs of full maturity: 1) The stem should be gone, leaving a smooth, symmetrical, shallow basin called a "full slip." If all or part of the stem base remains or the scar is jagged or torn, the melon is not fully matured. 2) The netting or veining should be thick, coarse, and corky, and should stand out boldly over the surface. 3) The ground color between the netting should have changed from green to yellowish-buff, yellowish-grey, or pale yellow.

Those are signs of maturity. However, a cantalope might be mature, yet not ripe. You have to look for the signs of ripeness too. A ripe cantalope will have a yellowish cast to the rind, and a pleasant odor when you sniff it. When you apply light thumb pressure to the blossom end, the melon should yield slightly.

You may find that all cantaloupes are quite firm when freshly displayed in the store. While some may be ripe, most have not yet reached their best eating stage. Hold them for two to four days at room temperature to allow them to ripen.

The Essential Ingredient

Eggs are a staple food, indispensable in the planning and preparing of family meals. They can be served in so many ways and are the basic ingredient in so many kinds of foods, and they are more than likely to appear in some form at every meal.

High in protein, they are economical and on hot summer days they can be the basis of light, easy to prepare meals.

Now is an excellent time to try eggs in old and new ways because, according to marketing specialists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, they will be in plentiful supply throughout July.

To be sure of getting quality eggs, buy graded eggs at a market that keeps them refrigerated. The USDA grade mark gives assurance that the eggs were of a specific quality at the time of grading. Assuming proper handling after the time of grading, there should be little loss in quality. The grades range from B to AA; these are marks of quality, not safety, as all of these eggs pass inspection for wholesomeness before reaching your store.

When cooking eggs, lower them gently into boiling water; simmer until done. Cooking time depends on how you want to eat them - soft, medium, or hard. Have ready a bowl of ice-cold water and gently lower the cooked eggs into it for a few minutes after cooking; this stops the cooking process and assures you that the eggs will be exactly at the degree of doneness that you prefer.

Hard cooked eggs are perfect additions to many summer main-dish meals. For example, when making a spinach salad, add chopped hard boiled eggs to spinach, raw mushrooms, and bacon bits. Or, try that favorite from the south of France, salade nicoise. Combine hard cooked eggs, sliced lengthwise, with tuna fish, anchovies, black olives, sliced tomatoes, onion rings, and your favorite salad greens. A simple oil and vinegar dressing, perhaps perked up with chopped capers, completes the meal. Serve with hot, crusty French bread, butter, a good white wine, and fresh fruit for dessert.

Seven Carroll County 4-H'ers were named state champions in their project areas and will receive a trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago this November. They are from left, Cris Stonesifer, dairy project; Michelle Myers, agriculture; Beth Basler, bicycle; Kris Eckard, achievement; Steve Eaves, plant and soil science; Tracey Jennette, dog care and training; and Kelly Binko, crafts.

The Dairy Business By Newton Bair

AUGUST IS FAIR TIME

Everyone needs some diversion from the summer's hard work. The month of August seems to be a logical time to take a break from the heavy duties of hay making, silo filling, and other ache and sweat jobs. Take the family to the fair!

The kids are probably already starting to groom and train their 4-H and FFA calves for the annual roundup. If they haven't started, it's high time they did.

Get out the cake of Ivory soap and the water hose, and limber up the elbows for the annual heifer scrubbing. The best leather show halter should be tried on for size, so that the calf gets acquainted with it. And maybe good old dad will help the younger 4-H'ers wield the clippers.

Local fairs have been a tradition in rural communities for centuries. They have served as an outlet for the stress and tension from farm work, as well as a time for meeting other folks, trading information and news, and showing off the fruits of one's labors. Fair time has a meaning far beyond fun and frolic. It provides a time and place for learning, competing, selling of ideas and knowledge, as well as a lot of fellowship and relaxation.

I remember the first time I attended the York Fair. It was about 1923, and I was too young to have a 4-H project, but my older brother Danny had raised a pen of feeder pigs. They did quite well as a project, making satisfactory gains and reaching the required weights in the allowed time.

But the thing that discouraged Danny from continuing in the pig business was the record-keeping that went with it. He kept the records all right, but the truth that they revealed was appalling. They had cost him $150 more than they brought at the roundup sale! The show itself wasn't too bad, but his pen came in next to last.

The only lesson he could see from the whole deal was that it was extremely unprofitable, and he wanted no more of the pig business. I resolved at that time, if I ever had a fair project, it would probably be a cow rather than pigs. Not that I have anything against them personally, but like Danny, I like to see some profit for my efforts.

Exhibiting your best animals, best crops, or best crafts is one way of showing the community that you are doing your share to improve the world. If you don't like to show off your farm's produce, the next best effort is to attend the fair and show your appreciation for your neighbors. A show is not a show unless there is someone there to applaud or quietly show their skill at judging. Spectators are just as important as the exhibitors.

So, take a couple of days off this month to go to the fair. Start with your local or county fair, and then plan to top off the season by attending Ag Progress Days at Penn State on August 20-22. Ag Progress Days are not designed so much for competition as they are for information and education: Field and garden research, insect control, weed science, animal health, and the even-more-important high tech of computerized farming, which is the theme of this year's ag fair.

Millions of dollars worth of new machinery can be seen in action. Maybe it will be worth while to evaluate those monsters in action. And while you are evaluating their performance, don't forget to also evaluate the cost and returns of owning them.

Some of the most valuable time you spend at the fair or ag exhibitions this summer might be just talking to your most successful neighbors. Find out how they bred the champion cow, or harvested the champion hay or silage. The most valuable secrets of sweet success are often learned from observing how your successful neighbor does it. But don't be misled by false economics. His bills must be paid too, just like yours and mine. If he is honest, his success will show that too.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

Ways to start farming

STARTING UP FARMING

One question I get a lot-even more now since farming has taken a down turn - is "how do I get started farming"? My first reaction is, "Why now?" In nearly 30 years of Extension, these past few years have been the most frustrating for new farmers.

The chances of a new farmer "making it" are directly related to the degree of help he or she receives from someone else.

In addition, the new farmer must be at least a 20% better manager than established farmers. And there does not appear to be any major upturn in Ag Commodity prices in the near future.

With all these odds against success, there are still people who are willing and even anxious to do battle. Over the next few weeks, I would like to spend some time exploring ways to enter the farm business.

Working Contract

A working contract is an agreement between a farmer and a "hired person" that is a little more than the usual boss-help arrangement. It has a number of variations but the basic design is to permit the hired person to build equity, develop some pride of ownership, and learn responsibility with a piece of the action.

The hired person may be able to own some animals or rent a piece of land or own some equipment. Their return would be based on how well that item did. Example: Dairy farm-hired man can own up to 10 cows in the herd.

The dairyman agrees to pay him a base wage of $400 per month plus 25% of the return above feed cost for his milking animals in the herd. In addition, the dairyman may agree to raise up to 10 heifers per year free of charge plus up to 10 additional ones at $1 per day. The hired man is responsible for the cost of breeding and registration of his animals.

The base wage and percentage of the return over feed cost would be set at the start of the agreement and would be dependent on each other as well as the number of animals the hired man could keep. The base wage may be varied in accordance with the number of milking animals the hired man has in the herd.

The percentage may vary from 20% to 100% depending on the responsibility the hired man assumes, on the initial base wage, and on other benefits given to the hired man by the farmers.

This program could be the start of a partnership, a joint venture, or a new farming operation or it could be an end in itself. If could also be a growing relationship. Example: Using the one above: The parties in question could put in a way for the hired man to gradually increase both his equity and involvement.

The first part of the agreement could be as above, then they could agree to allow the hired man to move to more cows with the stipulation that he begin to share some of the expenses.

Such as When he owns between 10 and 20% of the herd, he should also pay a percentage of the supplies and medical bill; between 30 and 40% of the herd, he should also pay part of the building equipment repairs and utilities.

This could be further expanded to the point where the hired man actually becomes responsible for part of the cost of purchasing capital items. That is where a partnership is in the making.

Why a base wage? Many times when I have suggested this type of arrangement to prospective farmers and hired people, their reaction is why the base wage. There are three reasons for the base wage at least at the start.

One is to maintain the boss-hired help relationship that is usually necessary in order to have a well managed operation. (There is no way a committee can manage a farm).

The second is to allow the farmer to use some of the employee fringe benefits as a tax deduction. (health insurance, housing, meals).

Third is to give the farmer a base for workers compensation. Yes I know that most farmers resist paying this cost, but it is really a necessary cost of having hired labor.

The topic of workers compensation will be another column sometime in the future so I won't belabor it any further here.

There are a number of these types of working contracts in central Pennsylvania. Some are formalized by a written contract, while others are strictly word of mouth. Which is best?

Written contracts are always the most businesslike, but there are written contracts that are never fulfilled and unwritten ones that go off without a hitch. Which mix of base wage-percentage of income-share of expense would be best for your situation is hard to assess. You and the other party must each decide what you want out of the relationship then be prepared to compromise. Warning if you are a potential young farmer do not go into anything until you have given it a lot of thought and done some pencil pushing to see if you will make it under the terms proposed.

Some examples for other than dairy farms: Hogs-hired person could own sows or a share of the feeder pigs. Beef-hired person could own a share of the feeder cattle. Crops-hired person could have their own fields and the two parties could make a yield check or the boss could buy the crop or the hired person could sell their crop on the open market. Where there is a will there is a way.

ECONOMICAL PROTEIN COSTS FOR YOUR CORN SILAGE with LSA® (Liquid Silage Additive)

Protein costs can vary. Eliminate this problem by using LSA.

Corn Silage typically checks 8% crude protein on a dry matter basis. By adding LSA, you can accurately and very economically raise the protein level to 13%.

Adding LSA is as easy as flipping a switch or turning a valve. It's also non-corrosive.

Get your feed costs under control, improve the quality of your feeding program, and eliminate cost variables with LSA.

For a silo with increased protein and more nutritious corn silage, please contact -

Cornell catalogs

ITHACA, NY. — The Media Services Audio-Visual Center at Cornell University has published two new catalogs listing the titles of films, videocassettes, slide programs, and audiocassettes available from the center.

Richard Gray, the center's librarian, says the "Agriculture" catalog lists available resources useful to schools as well as farm organizations throughout the United States and Canada.

The titles listed in the catalog include "Food...for Man," "Land Drainage," "Milk and Money," "Miracles of Apples," "Farm Implement Safety," "Barn Ventilation," and "Identification of Vegetable Insects and Diseases."

Another catalog titled "Video and Audio Tapes" lists all of the center's resources in those two formats. Some of the programs are useful to consumers, such as "Home Heating with Wood" or "Television Advertising for Children: Buy It or Ban It," but most are for the educational system. Because of the relatively high cost of the video and audio tapes, some libraries purchase the programs and make them available to home viewers and listeners.

To obtain the free catalogs, write to: Cornell University Audio-Visual Center, 8 Research Park, Ithaca, NY 14850. Catalogs on other topics, such as horses, honeybees, child development, prevention of child abuse, nutrition and health, safety, plants, and ecology are also available. The AV Center also has a 16mm film cleaning and repair service. For more information, call (607) 256-2090.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Farmers must do marketing

Marketing is part of management whether you as a farmer believe it or not. For too long the main thing for farmers was to be a producer. That is no longer sufficient, if it ever was, to be successful.

We as farmers must become marketers of our product. We must sell it to consumers who are bombarded on every side by advertisements from others who want their spendable buck.

We must stop fighting the consumer with slogans. What do farmers gain by antagonizing their only customer? How often would you go back to a store that insulted you or ignored you every time you went in to buy an item?

Farmers on a one-to-one basis are without question the most hospitable people on earth. Farmers as a group can be another matter.

Let's get back to the basics of selling our products. Back when there were a lot of small-farm, direct-to-the-consumers type of businesses, farmers dealing with the public soon learned to use "public relations."

The egg route man or woman was polite and usually had a pleasant word for everyone. The local dairyman knew his customers personally and greeted each one by name. The produce man knew just how ripe a customer wanted her tomatoes. There was a warm relationship that resulted in some loyalty.

There is no reason that farmers today could not gain that same consumer loyalty if they used a little public relations and told the customers they were important. This is called advertising. For small operations the advertising might be mostly word of mouth from satisfied customers.

ADVERTISING

Advertising is a necessary part of marketing whether it is the word of mouth type that small operations may use or the more formal news media ads used by big business. Let's face it, Coke did not become No. 1 by saying, "let Pepsi do it." Advertising comes in many parts:

- Ads as most people know them—in papers, on TV, on radio, as posters or placards on subways or other public walls.

- Quality products—one of the least recognized phases of advertising—without quality, a product may sell the first time but there will be no repeat business.

- Appealing product—any livestock producer or dairyman knows that there are some things that animals like better than others. That is why many farmers put molasses in their feed, so the critters will eat it better—right?

- Appearances—who among you would buy clothing from a junk yard with rusty parts, greasy cloths, clumps of weeds, etc. strewn around? How many of your customers do you think will buy your food product if they saw your farmstead?

- Feelings—who are you most apt to buy from, the salesman who comes in and says buy from me because I deserve it or you owe it to me—or the one who says you are a great person and I really appreciate your business or your business is important to me and I want to meet your needs?

WHAT TO DO

The 15 cent check off in the dairy industry was the first really concerted national dairy advertising effort that provided enough money to do any good. It is hard to access the results of any advertising but for the first time there has been a lot of interest in osteoporosis (lack of calcium—especially in women).

Ads are effective or Coke and Pepsi would not be spending the bucks they are in their battle over first place. Just think, if the dairy industry could get their act together, milk could easily slip in ahead of both of them and become the undisputed beverage of the present and future.

There is no question that quality will prevail. If you have a recognized quality product, consumers will be willing to pay a little more for it. The beauty of most farm products is that the quality is there to start with. Poor handling probably does more to reduce a top quality product to average or below than we realize sometimes.

Appeal is the name of the game. You could have the best ad campaign and the best quality in the world and your product will go to waste if it has no appeal. We in the farming business need to learn how to study our consumers to see what they want.

Remember in any part of our economy, wants have a habit of becoming needs. Yes, it is not only farmers and their families who have this happen. For example why don't dairymen realize that they might be able to increase milk sales by offering new drinks based around milk. What about rootbeer flavored milk, or orange flavored milk, or milk with carbonated fizz in it with different flavors.

Or for weight and cholesterol conscious people why not a lite-milk (skim) in flavors including milk flavor (but also vanilla chocolate, raspberry). Part of the advertising money should be going to research and development to improve keeping quality and new products.

REFERENDUM

At the risk of getting a few people upset, I am going to urge anyone who will listen to me to continue the 15 cent promotional program when it comes up for a vote this summer. Dairymen should at least give it a few more years to see if it will continue to help sell milk.

Study documents need for U.S. sugar program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — An independent economic study concludes that the United States cannot subject its domestic sweetener industry to the turbulent world sugar market without risking severe and permanent damage to American producers.

The study, conducted by Economic Perspectives, Inc. (EPI) of McLean, Va., was commissioned by the Corn Refiners Association, Inc. to examine the effects of the U.S. sugar program. The sugar program contained in the 1981 farm bill, which expires this year, prevents subsidized foreign sugar from displacing domestic sugar and corn sweeteners in the U.S. market.

Robert C. Liebenow, president of the Corn Refiners Association, said that "without a domestic sugar program, U.S. sweetener producers would be quickly driven from the market, making this country primarily dependent on foreign suppliers."

Liebenow noted that the EPI study projects that, in the absence of the current sugar program, the U.S. would have had to depend on foreign sources for approximately 60 percent of its sweetener supply. Currently about 80 percent of U.S. sweetener use is supplied by domestic production of sugar and corn sweeteners.

Liebenow noted that the world price for sugar has been driven far below the cost of production by foreign government subsidies, and that refined sugar is currently selling in the world market for around one-quarter of its cost of production.

"If there had been no sugar program in the 1981 farm bill, it would have resulted in a loss of around $11.5 billion to the U.S. economy," Liebenow said.

According to the EPI study, U.S. sugar revenues would have dropped $6.1 billion; high fructose corn syrup revenues would have been down $3.5 billion; corn producers would have lost $900 million; and the U.S. government would have had to spend an additional $1.5 billion in price supports for corn from 1981 to 1985. Such a large increase in grain support costs would bring additional pressure to reduce the costs of the grain program, according to Liebenow.

The EPI study examines the impacts of the 1981 sugar program in the context of industry trends over the past 15 years. It compares sweetener industry performance since 1981 with trends that could reasonably have been expected in the program's absence.

Major conclusions of the study are:

* If foreign subsidies had not distorted the world sugar market since 1981, the U.S. sugar program would have had relatively little impact on sugar producers. Its primary role would have been to guard against potentially damaging price swings caused by variations in weather and yields.

* World economic and political trends indicate that the factors which have caused worldwide depression in sugar prices are

* In the absence of an effective U.S. sugar program, domestic sweetener producers face severe economic losses.

* The current U.S. sugar policy, while effectively stabilizing U.S. prices, does not restrict domestic competition among sweeteners. High fructose corn syrup has gained an increasing share of the U.S. market because of production cost advantages. However, even high fructose corn syrup producers could not compete with current world sugar prices.

Bacterium is a 'natural' as bean rust fungicide

WASHINGTON — A bacterium in the soil may become a natural fungicide against rust fungus that causes bean crop losses of up to $250 million a year, a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist said.

C. Jacyn Baker, a plant pathologist in USDA's Agricultural Research Service, said that in field tests the bacterium Bacillus subtilis controlled seven of the major types of rust. He said the bacterium holds promise of controlling all 28 fungus types that cause rust disease on fresh and dry beans.

"Bean rust may be the most changeable fungus in America," he said. According to Baker, almost every time a resistant bean is developed for one type of rust, another type seems to adapt to the plant resistance.

Baker and pathologist J. Rennie Stavely screened bacteria at the Beltsville, Md., Agricultural Research Center. They found that B. subtilis is initially 60 to 70 percent effective in keeping spores of the rust fungus from infecting bean leaves.

"We only get that level of control if we spray the plants every few days, which is expensive," Baker said. The bacterium stops working either because it cannot spread to new leaves or the environment breaks it down.

As a first step toward overcoming this problem, Baker isolated the ingredient from the bacterium that prevents the spores from germinating. He has started testing combinations of the ingredient and chemicals for a potential "rust-icide."

"We want a natural fungicide that will move around on bean leaves and be more stable in the environment," he said.

Baker may also explore the possibility of using genetic engineering to make a rust-controlling bacterium that will thrive and spread on bean leaves.

Cool season grasses

Most perennial grasses grown for forage in the Northeast are considered cool-season grasses. They are species that make rapid growth during the cool moist periods of the year but are somewhat dormant and relatively non-productive during hot weather.

Orchardgrass, bromegrass, timothy, bluegrasses, ryegrasses and reed canarygrass are all cool-season grasses. Tall fescue is also considered a cool season grass but is most widely grown for forage in the humid temperate areas of the U.S., including Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri.

In general, late summer, with its cool nights, adequate rainfall and warm soil, provides a favorable period for establishing a stand of cool season grasses. Grasses sown in late summer or early fall tend to root more deeply because the slower top growth is conducive to better root formation.

However, some grass species are relatively non-winter hardy in the seedling stage while others may be quite hardy but lack seedling vigor and simply need more time to get established. Thus, you can't follow the same seeding rules for all cool season grasses!

This month let's take a brief look at some of the seed and seeding characteristics of several cool season grasses, and consider from a practical viewpoint how these relate to time and method of seeding on your farm. And while I recognize grasses are generally grown in mixture with a legume, comments today will be limited to the grasses only.

To begin with, seeds of all the perennial grasses are small (see table). Thus, a firm seedbed - to assure uniform, shallow, seed placement and a good moisture relationship in the zone of the seed; and shallow seed placement are essential.

Also, in general, for grasses, the smaller and lighter the seed, the more feeble the establishment. For example, bluegrass has an establishment capacity of 20-25%, timothy 40-50% and ryegrass about 60-80%. Thus, correspondingly more seeds per unit area must be used with the smaller seeded species.

	Approximate seeds/pound
Kentucky bluegrass	2,000,000
Timothy	1,260,000
Orchardgrass	600,000
Reed Canarygrass	530,000
Perennial Ryegrass	230,000
Tall Fescue	230,000
Smooth bromegrass	135,000

Since Timothy is the most widely grown grass for hay in the Northeast let's start with it. Timothy, because of its seed characteristics, is easy to sow. It is very winter hardy in the seedling stage and is best adapted to cool, humid climates, but not to droughty conditions. Thus, in the cooler areas of the Northeast, timothy can be sown in late winter, spring and later summer into fall.

However, in southern Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware, and other areas with similar climate, successful seedings are generally limited to late summer and fall. Lack of drought and heat tolerance in the seedling stage makes spring seedings of timothy in these areas risky.

Like timothy, Kentucky Bluegrass is very hardy in the seedling stage. However, the seeds are very small (see table) and germination and emergence relatively slow. While Kentucky bluegrass can be successfully spring seeded when conditions are favorable, it lacks heat and drought tolerance in the seedling stage. Thus, late August and early September is a preferred time of sowing.

Orchardgrass, on the other hand, is usually established with relative ease. And while it is more heat tolerant than Kentucky bluegrass or timothy, orchardgrass is only moderately winter hardy, especially in the seedling stage. Thus, for best results this species should be seeded either in early spring or August. Seedings made in September or later usually disappear over winter.

Historically, getting good stands of Reed Canarygrass has been a problem, partly because of low germination and vigor. Improved seed production and handling methods have helped to overcome this problem. This species can be successfully established in either the spring or late summer if moisture conditions are satisfactory.

However, reed canarygrass seedlings are susceptible to killing by cold temperatures and must be well developed going into winter. Likewise, they are not as drought tolerant as orchardgrass. Thus, August seedings on a firm, well prepared seedbed are usually most successful.

Perennial Ryegrass is a relative newcomer to the Northeast forage scene. Lack of winter hardiness and persistence had been a limiting factor in the earlier use of this species. Newer, more hardy varieties have made the use of this species useful in our area, especially when grown with a legume. As indicated earlier, perennial ryegrasses have a high establishment capacity which help to overcome their lack of heat and drought tolerance and hardiness in the seedling stage. Thus, early spring and late summer seedings are most likely to succeed.

Tall Fescue is not considered difficult to establish even under rather adverse soil conditions. Both spring and late summer are good times to sow this species. And while tall fescue seedlings are not as hardy as bluegrass or timothy they do exhibit somewhat more hardiness than orchardgrass. Thus, summer seedings may be stretched out later with this species.

In general a moist, fertile, firm seedbed is required for successful seedings of Smooth Bromegrass. And depth of seeding (not more than 1/4" to 1/2") can be especially important with this grass. A relatively slow to establish grass, bromegrass may be sown in spring or late summer. Seedlings that develop in the cool days of autumn usually grow rapidly the following spring. On the other hand summer seedings must be made early enough to assure good establishment before cold weather occurs.

Next month we'll take another look at fall management of alfalfa.

Centre extension director retires

UNIVERSITY PARK — Russell C. Seward, Centre County Extension Director and senior extension agent, retired June 30 after 30 years of service with the University.

Throughout the years, Seward has worked with various dairy health and nutrition programs, field demonstrations with corn and no-till planting, and lamb pools for sheep and wool growers. Additionally, Seward actively organized and participated in community development, planning and education.

He was instrumental in getting a high school local government course off the ground, developing the Centre County Vacationland Council that promotes tourism, initiating the effort which brought Keystone Legal Services to the county, and in bringing together various people and groups interested in housing to form the Centre County Housing Council. Most recently he has been involved with purchasing and long-range planning for the Centre County Grange Fairgrounds, which recently purchased a 136-acre farm.

Early in Seward's career when he coordinated the program, enrollment increased and programs expanded in the 4-H Club. The 4-H building at the Grange Fairgrounds exists in large part as a result of his efforts. While working with 4-H youth, Seward also expanded his programs to include adults—he organized the first Senior Extension Program in Centre County which offered programs in education, service and recreation for adults.

An effective communicator, Seward has contributed regularly to the area media and played host on several occasions to international visitors who were participating in agricultural training programs or were interested in seeing how the Cooperative Extension Service functions on the county level. Another pioneering effort was his appearance on the first series of Extension television programs broadcast in Central Pennsylvania, first from Altoona and later from WPSX at University Park.

A Penn State graduate, Seward holds a bachelor's degree in agricultural education and a master's degree in extension education. He is a member of many professional and civic associations, including both the Pennsylvania and National Associations of County Agricultural Agents, Epsilon Sigma Phi, the Centre County Agricultural Forum, and the Centre County Environmental Advisory Committee. He has served on the Steering Committee for Penn State's Ag Progress Days for many years.

During his retirement, Seward says he plans to travel internationally, continue his work with civic organizations and remain active professionally.

Promotion program backed by 16 ag organizations

HARRISBURG — In an unprecedented show of unity, 16 Pennsylvania commodity and general agricultural organizations are supporting continuation of the National Dairy Promotion Program.

The program is subject to a producer vote from August 1-20. Dairy farmers may obtain ballots from their local ASCS office.

The groups endorsed the marketing program for a variety of reasons, including preliminary research which indicated farmers were getting a positive return on

Additional results just released from Washington confirm that the nationwide generic advertising program has measurably increased fluid milk and cheese sales.

For example, an examination of 12 US market areas (with 43 percent of the population) indicates that a 12-month advertising program would yield a $4.74 return on every $1.00 invested in generic fluid milk advertising. Those figures are based on the December 1984 average Class I price of $14.10 and increased fluid sales of 622.5 million pounds.

The dairy cooperatives supporting the promotion program include Cleona Milk Producers; Dairyalea Cooperative; Dairymen, Inc.; Eastern Milk Producers; Farmers Union Milk Producers; Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative; Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers; Milk Marketing Inc.; and Port Allegheny Milk Producers.

Other state organizations in support include the Pa. Association of Farmer Cooperatives, the Pa. Farmers Association, the Pa. Farmers Union, the Pa. State Grange, the Pa. Association of Milk Dealers, the Pa. Dairymen's Association and Allied Milk Producers.

A "yes" vote for the referendum means continuation the 15-cent advertising program for all US dairy farmers. This program differs from some past proposals in that all dairy farmers participate and up to 10-cents may be earmarked for local promotions, such as federal order or statewide programs.

THE KRAUSE LANDSMAN

saves FUEL

saves MONEY

LANDSMAN is the Conservation Tillage Tool from Krause

The same Krause that pioneered the ROCKFLEX bearing hanger and the FLEX-WING Disc Harrow has built the LANDSMAN Conservation Tillage Tool to do in one pass what you now do in four. With a LANDSMAN you can disc, incorporate chemicals, cultivate and finish all in one trip. This can reduce your tillage costs by 70%. Because the LANDSMAN is designed to operate effectively at 6 to 7½ miles per hour, you'll cover more acres in less time and burn considerably less fuel.

YOU CAN EXPECT SUPERIOR PERFORMANCE FROM THE LANDSMAN, BECAUSE IT'S FROM KRAUSE

2 WAYS TO MAKE HIGH-QUALITY FORAGE

Case International 781 & 881 Forage Harvesters

With Case International, you get a full measure of what you want in a new forage harvester — capacity to move fast through heavy crops, performance to keep your harvesting on schedule, and high-quality forage that maintains its nutritional value until feeding time

crop and feed units with the touch of a switch

Big capacity feed rolls speed materials uniformly to the crop-hungry cutterhead

Stress-relieving design. Equal-angle hitch reduces strain on the powershaft, and lengthens PTO knuckle life

Easy to change crop units. 72 and 90-in. hay pickups • 2 and 3-row row-crop units • ear corn snapper unit • hopper attachment for grinding ear corn and filling the silo

Choice of two models: The 781 is for tractors up to 140 PTO HP, the 881, for tractors with as much as 190 PTO HP

Serving Customers in 20 States Coast to Coast.

Complete TA assemblies for 706-1586 are priced at $595 and come with a Dana Co Heavy Duty Sprag instead of the usual IH sprag. The Dana sprag is guaranteed for 2 years against failure. Sprag kits (includes sprag gear, Dana sprag, and piston carrier) and all items for rebuilding your own TA are available to qualified persons. Ramps and carriers for the older style TA's (as in SMTA, 340, 560) are priced at $150 each and carry a 90 day guarantee. We have all the parts needed to rebuild your TA in stock at prices that will save you money. We also have a shop available for complete TA installation. Or, you may split your own tractor and bring the center housing to us, which we can rebuild while you wait (approx 4-6 hrs). We also stock New and Rebuilt Water Pumps, Dynlife Clutches, Pressure Plates, and PTO Drive Gears, (Spline-fit into pressure plates) for most IH tractors and combines.

— QUALITY USED PARTS —

We buy and sell used parts and parts tractors. We have a good selection of quality used parts at competitive prices. Please have part no. when calling, if possible.

THE HIGHEST CAPACITY SQUARE BALERS IN THE WORLD.

No matter how many fields you have to bale, Vicon's new square balers offer a wide selection of the highest capacity square balers in the world.

A combination auger feeder fork moves the crop evenly into the full width of the bale chamber. So you get consistent bales of even density, time after time.

And because Vicon engineers have reduced moving parts and chain drives to a minimum, you get reliable, trouble-free performance, season after season.

Stop by your Vicon dealer soon and take a look at the four new Vicon square balers. No matter which you choose, you'll get the highest capacity square baler in the world.

The NEW Silo-Matic

9200 UNLOADER

SILO UNLOADERS

Silo-Matic®
FEEDING SYSTEMS

The main gathering auger is heavy duty 16" diameter, with 5/16" flighting mounted on a 4" tube. The auger has adjustable front and rear 14 gau. galvanized shields, for maximum capacity. The auger is powered by a 60 lb. gearbox which brings forage to the center for the delivery chain.

To deliver the high volume of forage from the sweep auger to the inside chute, a heavy duty hook chain with hardened cutters is used to convey the forage. The stainless steel top shield is easily removed to adjust the chain if needed. The plate and V pipe keep the delivery chain positioned over the inside chute in the forage.

"WE'RE HERE TO SERVE YOU"

The MANURE PUMP with a BIG BITE

If you are trying to agitate and pump manure without this big propellor and positive cutting blade, you probably aren't doing it as fast as you could.

This big 24" steerable propellor agitates even the hardest of manure storage pits with heavy bedding at displacement rates of 18,000 gallons per minute. The cutting blade will chop long straw bedding and hay from feed bunks to mix it into a rich and creamy fertilizer. This pump is available for all sizes of storage areas in lagoon, trailer, 3-point hitch, and stationary models.

Don't be caught short of enough pump to do the job.

Busy Acre Farms was busy at York/Duroc Show

BY DONNA MCCONAUGHEY
Staff Correspondent

LEBANON — The Pennsylvania Yorkshire and Duroc Breeders Associations held their annual Summer Show and Sale at the Lebanon County Fairgrounds recently.

The agenda included a Junior Livestock Judging Contest, market hog show, live animal evaluation contest and educational contest conducted by Ken Kephart, Penn State Swine Specialist, and a show and sale of breeding stock.

The livestock judging contest was a first for this event. The breeders hoped to encourage juniors involved in livestock projects to further their selection skills through participating in this event.

Busy Acre Farms owned by Calvin Lazarus and Sons exhibited a strong showing in both the breeding and market shows. Grant Lazarus represented the firm and won the champion bred gilt, and the champion boar in the Yorkshire show. In the Duroc competition they showed the champion and reserve champion bred gilts, reserve champion open gilt, and reserve champion boar. In the market show Lazarus exhibited the Champion Barrow.

Larry Arnold exhibited the reserve champion Duroc boar, a fall boar out of RB Extra 23-3.

Tom Arnold bred the reserve champion Yorkshire bred gilt. She was an August gilt out of "Austy," the sire of the top gaining pen at

Maryland Extension urges caution with poultry exhibits

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — After a one-year lapse brought on by the 1984 avian influenza quarantine, live poultry shows are back in full swing this summer at many county fairs. And a fairly large turnout of 4-H and FFA exhibitors is expected during the Maryland State Fair, which gets underway at Timonium on Aug. 24.

So now is the time to check on health requirements for exhibition poultry, notes Charles J. Wabeck, an Extension poultry specialist at the University of Maryland and assistant superintendent for the state fair 4-H and FFA poultry show.

Taking immediate steps to insure compliance with the state Department of Agriculture regulations will help to avoid unpleasant hassles later and possible barring of your poultry from competition. Dr. Wabeck noted.

The important thing is to have proof that your entry is certified as coming from a pullorum-typhoid clean flock, or that your birds have had a negative pullorum-typhoid test within 90 days of being moved to the show site.

This regulation has been in effect in Maryland since late 1977, and it has been a requirement at the Maryland State Fair since 1978. But many 4-H and FFA exhibitors apparently are still not aware of the regulation.

The poultry health requirements apply to both chickens and turkeys, Dr. Wabeck reports. Ducks and other waterfowl may be exempted if it can be shown that they are the only species of fowl on the exhibitor's premises. Otherwise, they also must meet the pullorum-typhoid health testing requirements.

To qualify, your birds for pullorum-typhoid clean status, contact your county Extension agricultural agent. If 4-H or FFA exhibition birds come from a flock that has been tested within the past 12 months, the Extension agent can provide written evidence that the birds come from a pullorum-typhoid clean flock. This letter must accompany the birds to the show site.

Broilers or meat birds from commercial flocks may be accompanied by a similar written statement from the flock supervisor.

If your exhibition birds don't come from a certified pullorum-typhoid clean flock, your Extension agent or a state Department of Agriculture animal health representative can furnish a list of approved testers. For a small fee, one of these testers will come out to your premises and conduct the necessary testing. The procedure is fairly simple.

With chickens, a plate test analysis is conducted which can give immediate results. This involves drawing a drop of blood from each bird and testing it for antibodies on a plexiglass grid plate.

In case of doubt, a large sample of blood is drawn from under the bird's wing, placed in a tube, and sent to one of the state Department of Agriculture animal health laboratories for more complete testing. This latter procedure is always followed for turkeys.

Why all the fuss over pullorum-typhoid?

Dr. Wabeck explained that it is a disease caused by salmonella organisms. The disease can be passed from parent to offspring through the egg, and it results in high mortality of young chicks.

Adult chickens may become carriers of the disease by contact with fecal material from infected birds.

About 45 years ago, pullorum-typhoid — also known as white diarrhea — affected a high percentage of U.S. flocks. Today, it has been virtually eliminated; and poultry health authorities want to make sure that the situation stays that way.

York, Lancaster top Yorkshire/Duroc livestock judging

BY DONNA MCCONAUGHEY
Staff Correspondent

LEBANON — The Pennsylvania Yorkshire and Duroc Associations sponsored a statewide livestock judging contest as part of their three-day Summer Show and Sale.

The contest included nearly 100 4-H and FFA members from 19 counties. Junior members traveled from as far away as Westmoreland and Lawrence counties to participate.

In the senior division York countian Melissa Trostle took home the highest honors. Melissa has been active in livestock and meats judging for several years. She owns a Southdown flock and has served as the National Southdown Queen. Melissa has also been active in the swine showing during her 4-H career.

Following Melissa in second place was fellow team member, Tim Ferrence. The York County Senior Team was completed by fourth place Krista Rankin, and eighth place John Myers. These top placings combined to bring York County to the top in Senior Team competition.

In the Junior Division Lancaster county's John Hess topped the competition with a score of 277. The remainder of the top placing juniors were distributed among Columbia, York, Lawrence, Lebanon, and Chester counties.

In the Junior Team competition Lancaster county came out on top. The team consisted of Doug Musser, John Hess, Dwayne Livengood, and Anna Marie Frey.

Columbia county had the second place junior team, while York county followed in third, Lebanon in fourth, and Berks finished fifth. More than $500 in prizes was awarded to winners in both overall and species competition.

Recordkeeping for the seedstock producer

The purebred industry is not in the process of expansion. In fact, numbers are shrinking for most breeds. Why? For one thing, economic times in the hog business are miserable. We can't do much about that.

But it goes a little deeper than hog prices. I've talked to many folks on the commercial end of production that aren't finding what they want from the purebred man.

Purebred Problems

One problem is volume. For example a purebred producer with 25 or even 50 sows can't supply a commercial operation with 100 gilts in one crack. Should this producer expand so he can accommodate large orders? No. If 25 sows is the right herd size for an individual then he has no business expanding.

Health can be an obstacle. Some purebred operations are plagued with rhinitis or mange—problems that commercial herds do not need. Other seedstock producers, through no fault of their own, are in a bad location. For example, the concentration of pseudorabies in the southeast counties of Pennsylvania hasn't helped purebred sales in that area.

And there's another important factor. Quality. Here the commercial man is asking for three things—soundness, performance and carcass merit, probably in that order. No one would question that we need all three. But I've met too many purebred producers that rank carcass merit on the top and soundness on the bottom. The Kleen Leen's and Dekalb's may owe their existence to this conflict in priorities.

We've talked about soundness for years. And we've made progress, but not enough.

And we've talked about performance for years. But as an industry, I'm not sure we've made any progress. Why not? Because we've relied on looks and fads and not on records.

The genetic potential is out there. But to find it, you have to blow the dust off your scales and you have to write things down.

In my book, the essential records for the purebred producer include:

- Identification.
- Number born live.
- 21-day litter weight.
- Days to 230.
- Backfat probe.

With these five pieces of information you can construct indexes. The indexes help you make progress by making the right decisions.

Selection Indexes

General Index - Includes number born live, 21-day litter weight, days to 230 and backfat.

Maternal Index - Uses the same traits as the general index but puts more emphasis on number born live and 21-day weights. This index could be used for replacement gilts.

Paternal Index - Uses the same traits as the general index but puts more emphasis on days to 230 and backfat. This index could be applied to boars used in a terminal cross program.

Sow Productivity Index - This one's the most popular. It includes number born live and 21-day litter weight. Used to rank sows against others within the same breed and farrowing group.

L = No. born live
L = Avg. no. born live for group
W = 21-day litter weight
W = 21-day litter weight for group

Most Probable Sow Productivity (MPSP) - Estimates future production of sow. Takes into account the sow's average SPI and the number of litters. Use this to decide whether to keep or cull a sow.

Breeding Value for Sow Productivity (BVSP) - Estimates ability to transmit productivity to offspring. Based on average SPI and the number of litters. Use this to find the best sows to produce your replacements.

Contact me or your county agent for the particulars on these indexes.

Maryland Shorthorn breeder gets national ASA award

OMAHA, Nebr. — Howell F. "Buddy" Eyler of Myersville, Md., was recently named one of seven recipients of the American Shorthorn Association's "Builders of the Breed" award, according to ASA executive secretary-treasurer Dr. Roger E. Hunsley.

Eyler, his wife, Isabell, and daughters, Susie and Margie, are involved with the promotion of Shorthorn cattle and they were the focus of an article in the Maryland Farmer discussing the Shorthorn resurgence and their role in that development in Maryland. The Eyler daughters were heavily involved in the junior programs on the county, state, and national levels.

Eyler is a member of the American Shorthorn Association; the Maryland Shorthorn Association (he has served several terms on the board of directors); and the Shenandoah Valley Shorthorn Association. His family has hosted the Maryland-Virginia Shorthorn Field Day and the Maryland Shorthorn Family Picnic. He has served as sale manager of the Maryland Shorthorn Association Fall Calf Sale and the Shenandoah Valley Shorthorn Association Spring Sale. The firm sponsors several Shorthorn trophies at fairs in Maryland and Virginia.

Eyler is a recipient of the Maryland 4-H Alumni Award, serves as a 4-H leader in Montgomery County and is past superintendent of the Montgomery County Fair 4-H beef department. He is a member of the Montgomery County Cooperative Agricultural Center and the Maryland Farm Bureau.

Recipients of the prestigious national award are nominated by their state associations. The final selection is determined by a vote involving all past recipients.

there other programs you can use? Yes. The American Yorkshire Club will index your purebred sows for a minimal fee no matter what breed they are. They use these same principles but include only the maternal traits.

Will indexes provide fast progress? No. It takes time and a lot of effort. You have to collect records on every animal or the indexes won't be accurate or honest. But in a few years you'll have a better handle on your herd performance. You can use the indexes to price breeding stock. And the commercial producer that's buying from you will know what he's getting.

A select few purebred breeders already collect and use records. If you don't ask yourself why. Your answers will probably sound like excuses.

Queen Elizabeth attends World Angus Forum

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — More than 150 U.S. Angus breeders met with Angus leaders from around the world July 17 through 21 at the Fifth World Angus Forum in Edmonton, Alberta.

Highlights of the Forum, sponsored by the Canadian Angus Association, included a special visit by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain, formal presentations by beef cattle experts from around the world and the World Forum Angus Show. Attendance topped 600 people.

William Conley, president of the American Angus Association and Richard Spader, executive vice president, led the U.S. delegation, and were the official American Angus Association delegates to the meeting of the World Aberdeen-Angus Secretariat. This organization is made up of the various national angus associations and societies from around the world.

Secretariat delegates discuss problems, and their potential solutions, that are common to the Angus industry worldwide. Special emphasis is placed on facilitating international Angus germ plasm exchange. The group also attended an informal reception with the Queen Mother after her appearance before the World Angus Forum session on Thursday morning, July 18.

Keynote speaker for the Forum was Dr. Robert Long, professor of animal science at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. Long urged the group to abandon many of the traditional beef cattle selection criteria and to concentrate on just four factors when selecting beef cattle. These he listed as:

1. Reproduction efficiency.
2. Growth rate per unit of feed
3. Carcass Composition-including not just lean but also juiciness, tenderness and flavor.
4. Longevity.

U.S. bulls dominated the 299-head World Angus Forum Angus show at the beautiful Edmonton Northlands Agricom show grounds.

Grand champion bull honors went to MA Rising Star, the junior champion, owned by Morris Angus, Champaign, Illinois, and Weaver Angus Farm, Peoria, Illinois.

The senior champion, Gallighers Yankee, owned by Wayne Stevenson, Hobson, Montana, was selected for reserve grand champion bull by bull-show judge David Hasson of Ariss, Ontario.

The World Angus Forum, and meeting of the World Aberdeen Angus Secretariat, is held every four years. The previous forum was in 1981 at Christchurch, New Zealand. The Secretariat voted unanimously to accept the invitation of Sr. Marcus Firpo, president of the Argentina Aberdeen-Angus Corp., to have the Sixth World Forum in Argentina in 1989.

Angus Futurity

begins today

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The 38th All American Angus Breeder's Futurity will be held at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, Aug. 3 to 6, and will honor the "best of the best" Angus, according to Joe Bill Meng, Bowling Green, Kentucky, manager of the Futurity. Said Meng, "The All American is considered the premier showing of the finest Angus cattle in the country."

Prestigious honors also entice Canadian and South American breeders to bring their Angus cows and bulls thousands of miles to Kentucky's River City to show at the Angus Futurity.

Tom Burke, Platte City, Mo., chairman of the Futurity, confirmed that over $50,000 in premiums and awards will be presented this year. However,

Burke added, "The honor and accomplishment that comes from exhibiting at the All American Angus Futurity means more than money to breeders."

This year will also mark the sixth annual National Embryo Auction at the All American Angus Futurity. The auction draws record crowds of Angus buyers to Louisville, and sales are expected to surpass the $138,500 total which was achieved last year.

Baxter Black will speak at the Futurity Steak Fry, Sunday evening, August 4. Raised in Las Cruces, New Mexico, Black has worn many hats in the cowboy and cattle industries. He is a cowboy poet, songwriter, author and a veterinary consultant for Wellcome Animal Health.

White Oak names Lloyd director of dairy feeds

ELIZABETHTOWN — White Oak Mills is offering improved service to its Cumberland Valley dairy customers through the appointment of a Director of Dairy Sales and Nutrition for the Cumberland Valley.

Newville resident Donald E. Lloyd has been named by White Oak owners John and Mark Wagner to head up this expansion of services. Lloyd, who grew up on a dairy farm, has spent the last eight years selling feeds and service in the area. He joined the White Oak team because of "product, price and low overhead."

"Everybody has a ton of feed to sell and every ton has a price—there has got to be something else, like service," explains Lloyd. His first move in his new position was to institute a weekly route for a portable mill to service the customers he has come to know.

Sold on the advantages computerization can give to a dairyman, he maintains a file on every customer which considers the equipment, the state of the herd and the unique needs of each. He then provides individualized follow-up. Noting that, "I treat each farm individually because no two are exactly alike," the new White Oak man insists that service is what dairy farmers need.

A 1964 graduate of Big Spring High School, Newville, Lloyd has received training at the Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture, Doylestown and Messiah College, Grantham. He served ten years with the Mennonite Central Committee. His assignments included working as a food canner, welder and disease research volunteer as well as spending three years in Zaire.

Currently servicing Cumberland and Franklin Counties from his home, he can be reached at 717 776-5730 or through the mill toll-free at 800 468-5524.

"I emphasize field coordinating of the dairyman's needs to give them the opportunity to prosper," he concludes.

New antibiotic available to swine producers

LINCOLN, Nebr. — A new oral, water-soluble antibiotic for control of intestinal E. coli (coli-bacillosis) and other bacterial infections of swine has been introduced by Nordan Laboratories. Trade named 'Apralan,' the product is available as a powder for administration in drinking water to weanling pigs. Apralan contains apramycin sulfate, which has activity against many types of bacteria. Apramycin is particularly effective against E. coli.

Apralan proved highly effective in university studies involving 360 pigs in herds with E. coli scours problems. Apralan-treated pigs had an average weight advantage of more than 3 lbs. at the end of 7 days. Even though medication was discontinued after 7 days. Apralan-treated pigs weighed 4.9 lbs. more than untreated pigs at 21 days. Treated pigs also had a higher gain-to-feed ration than controls. For each pound of feed, treated pigs gained .78 lbs. while untreated pigs gained only .48 lbs.

Apralan has a high degree of safety. Studies showed that multiple doses administered for extended periods had no adverse effects in pigs or pregnant sows.

Farm Credit sponsors five at National 4-H Conference

YORK — The Pennsylvania Farm Credit Service sponsored five Pennsylvania 4-H's and one 4-H volunteer leader selected to attend National 4-H Conference last April.

From the opening night inspiration service on the steps of the Capitol building to the closing assembly the following week, leaders and 4-H members had many memorable experiences to take home.

Participants sponsored were Debbie Fagley, Montgomery County; Jamie Simcox, Clinton County; Chris Shive, York County; Missi Mallino, Indiana County; and Titina Ott, Westmoreland County. Lois Pifer was the 4-H leader who attended along with Carol Schurman, 4-H agent from Indiana County who acted as chaperone for the group. This year's delegation received partial support from the nine Pennsylvania Farm Credit Services. Pennsylvania Farm Credit Service has sponsored the Pennsylvania delegation to this conference for the past three years.

The two-fold purpose of this conference is to involve youth, volunteers, and staff in national program development and ways to develop a stronger public image of 4-H. The former objective is met through the appointment of participants to one of fourteen consulting groups. These groups meet at length during the conference to discuss the assigned topics and make recommendations in a final report to the staff of USDA. These recommendations, where feasible, are then incorporated into future 4-H programming.

The second purpose is accomplished through an expanded and strengthened 4-H Ambassador program which provides training for one member from each state who will be available for 4-H

The 4-Hers are selected from the Outstanding 4-Her and Personal Development nomination form through the National Awards program. Each delegate filled out a Pennsylvania Award Report form and competed against over 70 4-Hers from across the state to receive this honor. A selection process for volunteers of county and regional nomination with final selection by the State 4-H Program Development Committee makes up the final number of this delegation.

Participants represented forty-eight states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and all Canadian provinces. National 4-H Conference is a peak experience, capping a successful 4-H career for these delegates.

Butler markets new scale

FORT ATKINSON, WI — Today's farm economy has made precision weighing a vital part of the management practice of many farmers. And, to meet an increasing need for an efficient, economical scale, Butler Livestock Systems has introduced its Universal/Animal Scale.

It can be used for many applications, such as weighing bulk commodities, pallets and boxes; culling market animals by weight; obtaining litter weights; selecting breeding stock; evaluating feed performance, and providing weights for accurate calculation of medicine doses.

The Butler Universal/Animal Scale package includes two scale channels; four universal mounts; four 1-inch DB weigh beams; and one OMP-5 or OMP-15 indicator. The unit allows total flexibility, since the decking and gating can be custom designed.

Features include a 7-foot long platform that can be built to any width up to 4 feet between channels. The recommended decking material is 2" x 8" lumber or other suitable material, supplied locally. The unit is portable, and a concrete base is recommended to insure uniform loading on all four weight beams. The unit requires 12 volt-DC power, which allows it to be operated with either a battery or an AC/DC converter. The weighing capacity is 4,000 pounds.

New submersible pump developed for liquid manure

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL. — The new Neptune Hi-Pro™ submersible pump from A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. is the cornerstone for a complete reception pit system for liquid manure.

According to James Schaap, executive vice president-marketing, many installation problems may be solved by the pump's optional pit hardware package. The 550 lb. pump itself can be moved easily, so it's ideal for use in multi-pit installations.

The pit hardware kit includes a rotary deck with folding cover plates for safety and convenience, manual valve, automatic coupling to the discharge pipe, a rock guard to reduce damage to chopper components, and a zinc anode to protect against electrolytic corrosion.

In action, the submersible pump performs three separate functions. First, it chops raw manure, presenting 10,500 cutting surfaces per minute at 1,750 RPM. Second, it agitates material in the pit to homogenize the slurry and prevent solids build-up. Third, it transfers the liquid manure into a long-term storage facility such as a Slurrystore® system.

The Neptune pump's 20 h.p. motor performs at full rating on either single or three-phase power, moving up to 1,000 GPM and providing 90 ft. of shut-off head pressure.

Other features include a convenient shear pin that can be replaced in minutes; two-way reversible chopper components for extended life; a built-in early warning device that signals the operator if liquid should penetrate the sealed motor compartment; and an exclusive power cord retractor for safety and convenience.

The pump is available in two versions, including one for six-to-eight-foot deep pits, and one for up to 10-foot pits. A choice of manual or electric winch is included. The new pump carries a two-year full warranty on the pump assembly, except for chopper block assembly components which have a full one-year warranty.

The Neptune Hi-Pro™ submersible pump from A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. is part of a complete reception pit system for liquid manure. For top efficiency, the pump can be moved to serve more than one pit. Powered by a 20 h.p. motor, the pump can move up to 1,000 g.p.m. of liquid manure.

Wade' Rain unveils sprinkler

PORTLAND, Or. — A new concept in home sprinklers has been introduced by Wade'Rain, manufacturers of agricultural irrigation equipment for over 50 years.

RainTower, the first product created by the company for the consumer market, overcomes many of the problems associated with traditional sprinklers.

It is the only home sprinkler to feature an elevated stand that adjusts to heights of either 41 or 72 inches. The tower's height allows gentle rainlike irrigation on lawns, gardens, flowers and shrub beds without "shadowing" — dry spots caused by tall obstacles.

By adjusting the sprinkler head and water-throw distance, users can cover almost any yard or garden shape, and up to 5,200 square feet with one setting. This means less time spent repositioning the sprinkler to cover a large or unusually-shaped area.

Lincomycin can be used for swine MPS, dysentery

KALAMAZOO, MI — Two of the most serious — and costly — diseases faced by swine producers today can be effectively and economically handled with one antibiotic, a company veterinarian stated recently before a gathering of swine practitioners.

According to Dr. Terry Cowan, technical services veterinarian for The Upjohn Company, the proper use of lincomycin can significantly reduce the severity of cases of mycoplasmal pneumonia in swine (MPS), as well as treat and control swine dysentery.

Dr. Cowan discussed the use of lincomycin in treating swine dysentery and mycoplasmal pneumonia at a swine seminar held recently at Upjohn's Brook Lodge Conference Center in Augusta, Michigan. The seminar was attended by key swine veterinarians from across the United States.

Dr. Cowan, whose responsibilities include offering veterinary advice and troubleshooting expertise to producers and practitioners in the field, reviewed his own experiences with lincomycin. "I'm convinced of the efficacy of lincomycin in the field," Dr. Cowan said. "I was convinced it worked even before I started working for Upjohn. Now, I am able to see the results of lincomycin treatment first-hand and I know it's effective as well as economical for treating mycoplasmal pneumonia and controlling swine dysentery in the long run."

Dr. Cowan recommends treating mycoplasmal pneumonia, a chronic respiratory disease that makes a pig susceptible to secondary infections, at an approved level of 200 grams of lincomycin per ton. Swine dysentery, an infectious disease of the large intestine, also called bloody scours, can be treated with a 100-gram level of lincomycin per ton of feed for at least three weeks, and controlled by a 40-gram per ton level thereafter.

"My experience indicates that it's very economical to treat mycoplasmal pneumonia with a lincomycin feed additive in the starter ration," Dr. Cowan explained. "As far as the transmission of mycoplasmal pneumonia goes, the period when pigs are weaned and grouped can be one of the most stressful times in their life, thus making them more susceptible to infection. This program is cost-effective when you consider the average feed consumption of a pig that is weaned at three weeks of age." Dr. Cowan estimates that such a treatment program would cost the producer an average of $1 or less per pig and potentially pay for itself in reduced days to market.

The 200-gram level of lincomycin, according to the veterinarian, will reduce the number of infected lobes, and the size and severity of lesions in pigs infected by Mycoplasma hyopneumoniae, the organism that causes mycoplasmal pneumonia.

Dr. Cowan also stressed that lincomycin can be equally cost-effective in both treating and controlling swine dysentery. "I observed field trials in units with histories of swine dysentery," he explained. "These units commingled feeder pigs that had been purchased at sale barns — just the sort of pigs that are going to have a lot of disease problems." Dr. Cowan discovered that the performance of such pigs given lincomycin easily outdistanced that of pigs under the same conditions given different medications.

"The mortality rate varied from 29 percent for a group on one product, down to 4 percent for the group on lincomycin," Dr. Cowan said. "And although the efficacy of the drug shouldn't be evaluated on total performance, I believe overall performance is a reflection of the success of disease control and management. The pigs fed lincomycin certainly showed that in terms of average daily gain and feed efficiency."

In comparing the economics of lincomycin with other products, Dr. Cowan also discovered that the medication was as cost-effective as other treatment programs. "I used current retail prices and manufacturers' recommended dosages to compute the average treatment cost per pig given a standard level of infection," Dr. Cowan explained. "Lincomycin was comparable with its competitors at $3.77 per pig for swine dysentery treatment and control. Some of the programs averaged in the $5 and $6 range per pig," he added.

"Lincomycin is a proven medication," Dr. Cowan concluded. "It's been in the field — and working well in the field — for over ten years. It doesn't pay to take shortcuts with swine diseases. The most expensive treatment program for the producer is going to be the one that doesn't work. Swine dysentery and mycoplasmal pneumonia need to be treated effectively and consistently to enable the producer to make the most out of his investment."

Down On The Farm...

the old song asks. The Williamsport Area Community College answers with two modern-day programs in Dairy Herd Management and Agribusiness.

The Williamsport Area Community College believes in the tradition of the family farm. Our programs are designed for students who plan to return to their home farm or others who hope to find careers in farm and farm-related operations.

You don't learn all about farming from classrooms and textbooks. So, a good deal of our students' training takes place at our 265-acre farm, the Danville State Farm Laboratory.

The Williamsport Area Community College offers 64 vocational, technical and transfer programs. To learn more about the College and its programs, call toll-free, 1-800-367-9222 (1-800-FOR-WACC). Or, write our Office of Admissions.

EXCITING NEW CONCEPT FOR SAFETY & COMFORT "THE SEAT BAR"

Multi purpose padded seat bar is in place at top of cab. When operator is seated, he fastens seat belt before pulling down seat bar. Rear window serves as emergency exit, if necessary.

Seat bar allows adequate body clearance for range of operator sizes. Bar is quickly easily pulled down by hand and secured at waist level, providing additional restraint protection that prevents operator from falling forward.

With bar in place, spring lock is disengaged, activating foot pedals which operate loader hydraulics. Foot pedals are locked when bar is in "UP" position, preventing lift arms from moving.

Wenger, Tilghman named to Chesapeake Bay Commission

HARRISBURG — State Senators Noah Wenger (R-36) and Richard Tilghman (R-17) have been appointed to serve as members of the Chesapeake Bay Commission by Senate President Pro Tempore Robert C. Jubelirer (R-30).

Under legislation recently signed by Governor Thornburgh, two senators are included in the seven-person Pennsylvania delegation to the 21-member commission. The other Commission states-Maryland and Virginia-also have seven commissioners each.

In making his selections, Jubelirer pointed to Senator Wenger's outstanding working relationship with the agricultural community, which has a vital role in the cleanup effort, and to Senator Tilghman's familiarity with the Chesapeake region as well as his expertise in fiscal and program management.

"I look for Senator Wenger and Senator Tilghman to help the Commission develop sound recommendations for action that can be carried out in a cost effective manner. Because the Susquehanna River watershed has such a profound impact on the Bay, our strenuous efforts to address agricultural runoff and pollution problems and to provide public education will key a successful strategy," Jubelirer stated.

York ASCS still Accepting Bay Program applications

YORK — The York County ASCS is still accepting applications for conservation practices to be performed through the Chesapeake Bay Program.

Cost sharing on most of the eligible practices is at the 70 percent level, with some at 50 percent, all not to exceed a maximum established by the committee. An application must be filed and approved by the committee prior to beginning the practice.

Contact the York County ASCS office, 120 Pleasant Acres Rd., York.

Gehl's new 760 forage harvester is more machine for your dollars.

Put it up against all other forage harvesters of its size and you'll say it's the best buy on the market.

This versatile model roars along with tractors as high as 150 hp and purrs along with tractors as low as 60 hp (Gehl also has two other models: the 1260 which can be used with tractors up to 300 hp and the 1060 with a new horsepower rating for maximum 200 hp).

At Gehl, durability is a must. And you can see it in the 21" cylinder of the 760. Eight tungsten carbide faced knives mounted on a hefty almost three inch shaft help give the 760 a reputation for ruggedness.

The 760 features a close coupled cylinder and blower with part of the cylinder knives actually running in the blower compartment. This increases the efficiency of the harvester by eliminating any dead spots in material flow through the unit. The 760 can be fitted with an in head hydraulic knife sharpener allowing the cylinder knives to be sharpened right in the field using tractor hydraulics. The knife sharpener system can also be used to reface the cutterbar for better cutting and reduced horsepower requirements.

Two adjustment bolts (A B) for single station cutterbar adjustment

Simplicity of design is a virtue in the 760. And it's a time saver. For example, with the simplified single-station cutterbar adjustment system, you can reset the cutterbar from one point on the harvester with a single wrench.

A new option for the 760 and 1060 are the bevel extenders for the cylinders. These extenders bolt onto the knives and give a longer cutting bevel, improving uniformity of cut in dry corn silage without power-consuming screens. Row attachments for the 760 include the one-row and wide or narrow two-row.

There you have it. Some of the reasons why Gehl's 760 is cost efficient as well as low-cost. But it's only part of the story. You can't fully appreciate this machine until you see it for yourself. Ask your dealer to demonstrate and price one out for you. And discover its full worth.

A Morton Machine Shed Doubles
(GOVERNMENT APPROVED)

Morton Buildings Do Double-Duty

BUY AND BUILD NOW — BE READY FOR HARVEST

A Morton Machine Shed with bulkheads installed is the most innovative idea in government approved flat grain storage. The sidewall bulkheads are 6' high designed to withstand pressures with grain peaked to trusses. The sliding door bulkheads withstand grain pressures when in place yet are easily removed for access to building by equipment and machinery. Regular grain storage bins cannot be used for machine storage when empty, but your Morton Machine Shed can — it does Double Duty!

TYPICAL EXAMPLES OF BUILDING CAPACITIES:

(With 13' Sidewalls)

- 42'x75' holds 21,710 Bu. +
- 48'x90' holds 31,787 Bu. +
- 54'x105' holds 44,000 Bu. +

(Grain height at sidewall 6' — Capacities will vary depending on moisture content, test weight and other variables.)

If you need cows that will milk 50 to 100 lbs. per day, Don't miss this sale. This is an opportunity to get milk, bloodlines and foundation livestock. This herd dispersal has quite a few cow families from Dams to Daughters to Granddaughters to small calves. This is a rough bone & good uddered herd with a lot of potential. They were never pushed for high production.

A new breed of dairy feed...

A convenient method of challenge feeding without a cash outlay for equipment. Available in 50 and 500 pound blocks.

is a 22% protein block formulated specifically as a feeding supplement for dry cows and heifers. Available in 50 and 500 lb. blocks.

...formulated for specific nutritional needs

- A High-Energy Complete Feed
for increased milk production and persistency. Contains enough nutrients to provide two pounds of milk per pound of consumption. Can help reduce weight loss during lactation and improve breeding efficiency. It is 30% higher in energy than former Purina Dairy Sup-R-Block.
- Completely Balanced
Offers advantages associated with additional balanced ration without additional labor or equipment. Results in better digestion and more efficient use of nutrients.
- Block Form
Convenient and easy to feed. Compliments any feeding system.
- Weatherproof
Rain rolls right off it, the sun can't melt it and snow and cold won't cause it to break down. The cows get it all!
- Palatable - with Intake Limiters
Molasses makes it highly palatable but intake limiters prevents over consumption when fed as recommended.
- Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium
Meets Vitamin A and D requirements of dairy cows when fed as recommended. Provides Selenium and Magnesium known to aid in reproductive performance and in the control of grass tetany.

- Weatherproof
Like its companion product, Easy Care Blocks stands up to all kinds of weather, so waste is minimal.
- Highly Palatable - with Intake Limiters
Molasses-based for palatability but contains intake limiters to prevent over consumption when fed as recommended. Dry cows and heifers get what they need — no more, no less.
- Balances Forages
Supplements forages to provide the balanced nutrition important to dry cows and heifers. Easy Care Block is formulated specifically to the nutrient requirements of dairy dry cows and heifers.
- Self Fed
Saves both time and labor — especially on hard to reach temporary pastures.
- Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium
Meets Vitamin A and D Requirements when fed as recommended and supplies Selenium and Magnesium lacking in some forages.
